

Diplomats at U.N. to Be Given Protection

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has promised "vigorous efforts" to protect U.N. diplomats on New York streets, but it questioned charges that a recent attack on an African diplomat was provoked by his color.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson sent Secretary General U. Thant a letter Monday answering a charge by the U.N.'s Asian-African group that Youssef Gueye, first secretary of the Mauritanian delegation, had been assaulted for racial reasons.

Stevenson said the youths who attacked Gueye told police they thought he was a member of a rival gang.

Stevenson expressed regret that such attacks have occurred in New York, but said they "do not reflect in any sense the attitudes and actions of the vast majority of citizens of New York, or of federal, state and city governmental authorities."

Ambassador John Boureima Kabore of Upper Volta told a news conference Monday that there had been four such attacks on African diplomats in New York in the past two years and protests to the United States did not stop them. As a result, he said, members of the 57-nation Asian-African group live in an atmosphere of terror.

Restaurant Man Says Contempt Rule Mistake

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A contempt proceeding brought against Lester Maddox after he refused to serve Negroes at a newly opened cafeteria was called a mistake by the Atlanta segregationist.

Maddox, enjoined from operating a segregated restaurant, opened a cafeteria in the same building Saturday. He barred four Negroes from the cafeteria Monday, the same Negroes he refused to serve at the Pickrick Restaurant.

U.S. Dist. Judge Frank A. Hooper signed an order a few hours after the incident, requiring Maddox to appear Oct. 2 and show cause why he should not be held in contempt.

"I think it is a mistake on the part of civil rights agitators and their attorneys," Maddox said of the contempt proceedings.

"The Lester Maddox Cafeteria is not an agent of Pickrick, Inc.," Maddox said. "The cafeteria has signs saying we do not offer service to interstate travelers. We removed Pickrick signs from the highway."

"I don't see any connection between the Lester Maddox Cafeteria and Pickrick, Inc., which was involved in the court decision."

"We just don't serve integrationists, whether they are black, yellow or white."

In the case of the Pickrick restaurant, Maddox, his heirs or successors were enjoined by a federal court from discriminating against Negroes.

Maddox met the four Negroes at the door Monday and shoved them back toward the sidewalk.

"We're not going to integrate," he said. "They ought to know that by now."

He said he did not believe the contempt proceeding would result in a fine or jail term.

"The fair way would be to wait until the U.S. Supreme Court rules on the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act," he said.

Maddox has appealed the order enjoining the Pickrick Restaurant and the Supreme Court also has an appeal pending on a three-judge federal panel that ruled the act was unconstitutional as it applied to a Birmingham restaurant.

Red Party Chiefs Say Summit Meeting Needed

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Communist party chiefs of Czechoslovakia and Hungary agreed Monday night that a summit meeting is the only way to deal with the dissident Peking regime.

Visiting President Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia and Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar also condemned the Chinese for trying to blackmail other Communist parties and for using "the same methods as reactionary circles in the West."

Novotny, apparently referring to the scheduled Moscow meeting in December, said: "If someone violates basic Marxist-Leninist ideas, we should try to find the cause of this phenomenon and if necessary fight the disrupters of unity."

He accused the Chinese Reds of "attacking the Soviet Union in the manner of a chauvinistic great power" and of putting forward ideas that "resemble the ideas of the most extreme imperialist circles."

"We must work incessantly to avert a split," Novotny declared. Kadar said the Peking regime "not only is sabotaging the call for an international conference, but is doing its utmost to worsen the internal situation of the Communist world movement, and blackmailing fraternal parties by threat of a split."

Novotny and Kadar also stressed the theme of independence and equality of Communist parties. The Chinese claim that most European parties take their orders from the Kremlin.

Current Books

John Fetler, Book Editor

"The God of the Machine," by Isabel Paterson — Caxton Printers, Caldwell, Ida. $4.95—Reviewed by Howard E. Kessler.

The work that was characterized by John Chamberlain when it first appeared in 1943 was "the first clear piece of sustained primary political thinking that has appeared in ages," has been reissued this year by Caxton's libertarian publishers. For this, all believers in free man and the free economy should be thankful, for the book has been out of print for many years, and in several years of scouring second hand book shops throughout the west we have never run across a copy of it. It is as scarce as Rose Wilder Lane's epochal "Discovery of Freedom," which, by coincidence perhaps, also was published in 1943. It is to be hoped that this seminal work too will soon be reissued.

Isabel Paterson, who died in 1961, was a novelist and book critic, (creator of the brilliant "Turns with a Bookworm" in the New York Herald Tribune; but her fame will rest upon this contribution to the cause of civilization, on which she worked for many years.

"God of the Machine" is an anti-collectivist argument "that only free men, in a free economy of private property, can maintain the long circuit of energy" that makes civilization work "to use the words of Henry Hazlitt, whose only criticism of the book was that "much of the thinking and style of the work are marred by a persistent and obsessive effort to write of man's economic, political and moral problems on the analogy and in the vocabulary of the flow of electrical energy."

It is indeed true that some readers may find the references to electrical circuits that appear on virtually every page of the "God of the Machine" somewhat tedious and difficult to comprehend. But it was Isabel Paterson's purpose to present here thesis in these terms, comparing America's culture to a dynamo in which, for the first time in history, the "long circuit of energy" could be completed. And the thesis is closely argued from beginning to end.

The "beginning" is in ancient Greece, with the voyage of Pytheas through the Straits of Gibraltar to Ultima Thule, the "end of the world." The "end" is the wartime world of 1943, of which Miss Paterson writes: "Whoever is fortunate enough to be an American citizen came into the greatest inheritance man has ever enjoyed. He has had the benefit of every heroic and intellectual effort men have made for many thousands of years, realized at last. If Americans should now turn back, submit again to slavery, it would be a betrayal so base the human race might better perish."

In between, the writer describes the progress made, with painful slowness, toward an understanding of the necessity of freedom if the long circuit of energy is to be complete. . . . through the limited successes of Rome; ("Before Rome found her formula, no clear distinction had been made between the public and private domain.") the British empire; ("The British Empire was founded when the debased coinage was restored to standard during the opening years of the reign of Elizabeth.") to the United States ("What happened was that the dynamo of the energy used in human association was located. It is in the individual.")

Miss Paterson's argument is against the "society of status," and for the "society of contract." "The whole problem is solved," she concludes, "by observing throughout the principle of contract; and it can be solved in no other way. Contract is the principle of the true dynamic economy."

The engineering problem, as she sees it, is to organize the long circuit for free men. "The book-up must be such that every man may change his place and occupation as he pleases within the whole range of possible choice, which is infinite. This calls for distribution of the product by a like method of exchange on agreement at each transfer. Given these conditions, the condition prerequisite to man's physical function in the circuit will prevail; the men engaged can get their livelihood from it by free exchange."

Spiced with myriad epigrams of pungent discernment, "God of the Machine," is a book to be studied and reread and quoted. While none of Isabel Paterson's sayings have had quite the circulation of Lord Acton's "All power tends to corrupt; and absolute power corrupts absolutely," the fact that her work is frequently quoted by libertarians was the reason we tried to find a copy of it for years, and now welcome its republication. To give but a few examples:

"Nothing is more essential to the welfare of a nation than the counter-check on government: a mechanism without a brake is built for self-destruction."

"If the people will not move the government cannot."

"A complex economy necessitates the political simplicity of free contract."

"Personal liberty is the precondition of the release of energy. Private property is the inductor which initiates the flow. Real money is the transmission line; and the payment of debts comprises half the circuit."

"Poverty can be brought about by law; it cannot be forbidden by law."

"History within nations consists of the struggle of the individual against government."

"Nine-tenths of the useful knowledge the average person possesses is certainly acquired out of school."

"A tax-supported, compulsory educational system is the complete model of the totalitarian state."

For these, and many, many other shrewd insights and splendid conceptions, read "God of the Machine."

FICTION — Arguing for the general merit of recent fiction, author - critic Stanley Kauffmann re-examines the position of the contemporary novelist in America in the 1964 edition of "The Great Ideas Today," published by Britannica.

The "threnodic note" common to most reviewers today, Kauffmann says, is that non-fiction is prospering but the novel is held to be in its usual low state.

"The chief peril in this pseudo Olympian attitude towards contemporary writing," warns the author, "is its effect on writers. The isolation of the novelist in this country is a dangerous and disturbing fact, frequently obscured by the general public by huge sales of best - sellers or by happy Department of Commerce figures about the 'book industry,' which includes a great deal besides literature."

In fact, the publication of novels — particularly but not exclusively first novels — has become an increasingly risky business for publishers. They know that booksellers are not interested in ordering fiction by less known authors, that the bulk of even a modest first printing may never be put on display. The resistance by booksellers is, of course, a reflection of public apathy and is passed on to affect publishing policy.

"A publishing house cannot keep alive by publishing only new great books. There are not enough of them, and never have been enough, in the history of books. A publisher of merit keeps alive by publishing as many books of merit as he can get — supplemented by others — so that he will be in existence if and when a potentially great book comes along."

"Likewise, a society, if it really wants the new great books of which it talks, can help them arrive by continuing regard for the life and state of literature of merit. I suggest, not overpraise, but increasingly refined discernment."

Last of Three Escaped Jailbirds Is Caught

BOSTON (AP) — FBI agents and police — spearheaded by police dogs Gita and Donner — burst into a back bay apartment early today and captured the last of three men who escaped from a Boston jail earlier this month.

Richard A. Carignan, 31, was taken while half asleep in the second-floor apartment. A loaded revolver lay on a nearby table, the FBI said.

Police said it was learned through a tip that Carignan was living in the three-room suite. The K9 corps dogs were sent into the room first and pinned Carignan to the bed as agents and officers swarmed into the suite.

Carignan, awaiting trial in the $61,000 robbery of the Lawrence Branch of the Arlington Trust Co. last March 5, broke out of jail on Sept. 11 with two other men who were captured that same day.

U.S. Gets Black Eye on Both Sides in Viet Strife

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The United States played a decisive role in keeping Vietnamese forces and rebel mountain tribesmen from slaughtering each other in the past week. But the United States has emerged with black eyes from both sides.

Top Vietnamese officials charge privately that Americans incited the rebellion and then interfered in Vietnamese operations to suppress it.

Relations between the United States and the Saigon government appear more strained than at any time since the final weeks of the defunct Ngo Dinh Diem regime.

Largely as the result of American peacekeeping efforts not a drop of blood was shed after the initial killing when the rebellion broke out Sept. 19.

American officers in the rebel camps and in nearby Ban Me Thuot did these things among others:

They persuaded the tribesmen at three of the five rebel camps not to join a march on Ban Me Thuot Sept. 20.

They persuaded rebels who seized the Ban Me Thuot radio station outside the mountain city not to go on into the city.

They eventually persuaded these advance elements to leave the radio station and withdraw along the road on which they had come.

They persuaded 470 armed rebels camped in a hamlet within quick striking distance of Ban Me Thuot to board buses and go back to their base.

They kept Americans at all five of the rebel camps throughout the crisis in an effort to make peace. Two of these Americans, Army Col. John H. Freund of New York and Lt. Col. Ervin R. Wendt of Adrian, Mich., were decorated today by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in Viet Nam, for their peacekeeping work.

On the other side the Americans persuaded the Vietnamese forces not to make an open attack on any of the rebel camps and to make air strikes on rebel hill positions.

Despite strong objections from the Vietnamese, American helicopters and planes supplied rebel camps with food and supplies for four days after the revolt began. The rebels had threatened to sack all Vietnamese hamlets in the area if this was not done.

Finally, the Americans yielded to the government's determination to seize the rebel camps but not until the Americans had made preparations to head off bloodshed.

Premier Nguyen Khanh in a speech to the tribesmen Monday said the crisis should be regarded as "a lesson not to let ourselves be incited by foreigners." He apparently was referring to the Americans.

Despite the well-intentioned

American efforts, the crisis appears to have resulted in a major American diplomatic and military setback.

The basis of the dispute between the tribesmen and the Vietnamese government remains unsolved and is likely to flare into violence at any time. The result could be a collapse of the tribal fighting machine American Special Forces have been building for the past three years to patrol the central Vietnamese border and intercept Viet Cong guerrillas on their jungle infiltration routes.

The crisis also has created dissension among Americans in Viet Nam.

American Special Forces, who have lived, worked and fought alongside the tribesmen consider their complaints against the government are justified. The tribesmen have been treated for centuries like second-class citizens and savages, and the Special Forces men feel this needs to be changed urgently.

Top American civilian intelligence men familiar with the situation agree with this assessment and feel greater American pressure should be put on the Saigon government to meet the minimum tribal demands. Among other things, these Americans feel the government should create a ministry for ethnic minorities.

On the other hand, American policy is solidly committed to supporting the Saigon government against insurgency. Insurgency normally is considered to mean the Communist Viet Cong, but presumably it also includes other insurgent movements seeking to weaken the government's authority.

Armed Forces News

By STEVE TILLMAN

By STEVE TILLMAN
WASHINGTON — (Special to Gazette Telegraph) — Top level Pentagon thinking at this time is that the rate of subsistence pay for active duty personnel is sadly in need of revision upward. It is quite possible that Defense will ask Congress for a raise in 1966 for subsistence rate increases rather than in basic pay.

There is developing a strong school of thought that all allowances and pay should be lumped into one rate of pay. While this would increase the annual Federal income rate for the active duty personnel it would increase the base on which the retired pay is computed. It is reported that many would be received favorably by career officers and men.

If Civil Service employees win their fight to retain full Civil Service retired pay and survivors benefits, Congress may extend this also to military people. Few in uniform subscribing to the Retired Serviceman's program realize that the survivor benefits cause if the widow re-marries.

Congressman William Miller who has been critical of the war record of President Johnson, is now finding that this attack has backfired. It now appears that Miller did not play "a major role" in the prosecution of Nazi war criminals as claimed in his biography. Press stories have it that he spent 4 months in uniform at the trial as one of several hundred lawyers.

Senator Strom Thurmond, who is a Major General in the Army Reserve, is expected to lose his longevity on the Senate Armed Services Committee in the next Congress. This will be severe loss to members of the Armed Forces since General Thurmond has always been a fighter for improvement in service pay and conditions. His transfer to Republican identity will take away his longevity which is so important in Congress.

Navy is expected to try to drop its WAVE TAR's. Under the proposal WAVES now in the Reserve training and administration billets will be offered the opportunity to be reassigned to Regular Navy, to be released from active duty or, if they have served 18 years on active duty, to be transferred to the Fleet Reserve when they attain such eligibility for transfer.

According to high level Navy sources Regular submarines are out. Exact data on the "subs" of this type in the Pacific is classified. Additional Polaris submarines are being assigned to the Pacific.

Reserve leaders are expected to attempt to have Army Reserve officers on extended active duty strength rather than continue to be included in authorized strength of the Reserve program. The present system holds up promotion for non-active duty Reserve officers. New Reserve program expected to be presented to Defense Department will call for dropping present policy of permitting active duty Reserve officers to retire in ROPA grade with higher retired pay than Regular officers who must perform active duty in grade to be eligible for retirement in the specific grade. The expected program would also ask that Reserve officers be automatically retired at age 60 and would not be required to make application for such retirement in order to qualify for retired pay.

Too many of the top men in graduation classes of the Military Academy have been accepting commissions in the Air Force rather than in the Army. As first step in program to retain these outstanding cadets in Army in 1965 qualified cadets in the top five per cent of the class, will go on to graduate school immediately upon graduation.

While some of the Service organizations may hold annual meetings in cities other than Washington, it has been learned that the Association of the U.S. Army will not make such change but will continue to meet in Washington.

Top level Army Reserve 2-star General Ralph Palladino, now serving as Military Executive of the Armed Forces Reserve Board, will retire October 1. He has reached 60 years of age and has completed 38 years of creditable service.

The Administration has formally informed Congress that it opposes any increase in Civil Service retired pay; the 30-55 retirement bill; and the proposal to eliminate the reduction in Civil Service retired pay so as to provide survivor benefits.

No employment of military retirees for the hoped for new ROTC program may be expected before late in 1965.

Under new Army policy men completing active duty tours will be able to retain Army overcoats only if such is needed for comfort while enroute home. The new rule will also apply to trainees of the National Guard and Army Reserve.

Confidential word among military planners at the Pentagon is that the 20-year retirement policy stays on the books. Rising costs of military retirees had given birth to rumors that the 20-year retirement privilege might be done away with.

The President has signed into law the proposal permitting Federal employees and military personnel having dispute over pay, to have their suits tried in Federal Courts. This will be optional where the amount in dispute is less than $10,000.

Armor Association is asking the Pentagon for a Tanker's badge to match the Combat Infantryman's badge and the Expert Infantryman's badge.

India Peasants Demonstrate In Capital City

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — About 2,000 ragged villagers streamed into New Delhi today and staged a screaming protest against government failure to cope with floods that have ravaged vast regions of north India.

Grizzled old men with canes, women carrying babies, children running to keep up, they swarmed through the capital's main business district, clogging traffic and sweeping aside pedestrians.

They congregated on a large grass traffic circle in front of the Parliament building. Surrounded by more than 100 policemen armed with lead-tipped bamboo sticks they set up chant that could be heard for blocks.

Banners and signs denounced Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri's government for lack of flood control measures. Some placards said the demonstrators had been homeless for weeks because of the floods. Several members of Parliament spoke to the crowd and received their demands for action.

The monsoon floods have left six million people homeless and covered hundreds of thousands of acres of badly needed crops.

Floodwaters had begun receding from villages around New Delhi until a 24-hour downpour last Friday. About 60 villages around the capital have been under water. A flash flood swept one village away Friday and drowned 39 persons.

Norwegian Labor Party Loses Votes

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Partial returns from elections held in 39 of Norway's 466 municipalities show the government Labor party running nearly 4 per cent below its showing last year.

In 21 municipalities, the Labor party received 35.2 per cent of the vote compared to 39 per cent in nationwide municipal elections last year. The party also lost the mayoralty race in Stavanger, Norway's fourth largest city with 80,000 inhabitants.

Norway's four non-socialist parties — the Conservatives, Christian Democrats, Agrarians and Liberals — all showed slight gains.

SYDNEY — Australians will export tin houses.

Vatican Council Okays Married Men as Deacons

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council today approved a measure allowing Roman Catholic married men to become deacons, council sources said.

But they added that the council voted down a proposal that young single men becoming deacons be allowed to marry.

Council fathers — cardinals, archbishops, bishops, patriarchs and other Roman Catholic prelates from around the world voted approval Monday for a permanent diaconate of deacons to assist priests.

Today the council was called upon to vote on the more controversial issue on whether the deacons might be married.

In the two ballots, the council voted that men who were married before deciding to enter the diaconate would be allowed to become deacons, but that young single men would have to remain celibate after entering the diaconate.

In a third ballot today, sources said, the council fathers agreed that national conferences of bishops should be allowed to decide whether deacons should serve in their areas.

South American prelates had pressed for the permanent diaconate as a means of relieving the shortage of priests on that continent.

The deacons will be able to baptize, marry couples, give communion, administer last rites and preach. But they will not be able to say Mass or hear confessions.

For centuries, the rank of deacon has been a temporary one, held by seminarians for a short time before becoming priests.

The diaconate was discussed in the council a year ago. At that time many prelates approved it, but objected to a married diaconate. Several bishops said it would threaten the traditional celibacy of the priesthood itself.

The council's revised declaration on the Jews remained a subject of discussion. An informed source said fear that the original declaration might have led to a future interpretation that Christ was not God caused it to be revised.

MEDICAL SUPERSTITIONS

The following letter from a reader started me thinking about various superstitions that flourished in the past and have not completely died out.

"Recently I heard about a disorder in which the body is destroyed by a blue flame in minutes. This condition is called spontaneous human combustion; all cells of the body suddenly begin burning simultaneously. Through an inexplicable self-combustibility or preternatural combustibility, the cells reach the critical stage of ignition but need a spark from an outside source before they burst into flame. Have you any information about this or could it be just myth?"

While this letter is way out, others come to us periodically asking whether fish is a brain food, whether Negro babies are born white, or whether a Chihuahua will cure asthma.

Some of these superstitions, or old wives' tales, are examples of illogical thinking. The asthmatic, for example, may be bothered by animal dander. Chihuahuas have a short coat of hair in contrast to other breeds of dogs. Whoever started the superstition thought dog hair is responsible for making the asthmatic wheeze, whereas the causative dander actually comes from the skin.

Some people still believe mental stability is dependent upon the phase of the moon. In other words, watch out when the moon is full. This advice might be logical for the romantically inclined but the effect on the majority of us is the esthetic pleasure moonlight offers.

Years ago mothers placed a bag of antiplogestine around the necks of their children to ward off germs — presumably the foul odor would drive them away. In some countries today, chains are worn around the neck or ropes around the body for the same purpose.

We should not guffaw about such practices when in the United States of America, where education is free and compulsory, some citizens wear a copper bracelet to ward off arthritis, where food grown by modern agricultural methods is considered unsafe, where vitamins are the answer to every health problem, or where relatives are afraid to use the clothing of a person who died of cancer, lest they "catch" the disease.

Health authorities will not rest content until all such misconceptions, myths, and superstitions are discarded. But we are a long way from that goal.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

● CAUSE UNKNOWN
B. M. writes: Is essential hypertension any different from high blood pressure?

REPLY
Yes, in that the cause is not known. It is believed that spasm of the smaller arteries exists. This creates increased resistance to the flow of blood, which in turn raises the pressure.

COLD LEGS
Mrs. S. writes: Could excess my legs freeze in an air conditioned room? (I wear hose.)

REPLY
Your capillaries may be overly sensitive to ordinary cold. This could so lessen the

ALCOHOL AND BLINDNESS

Mrs. E. S. writes: Why do I give drinking cause blindness?

REPLY
Yes, because of the toxic effect of the drug on the optic nerves.

Yes, and this is desirable.

President Pays Visit to Edward Kennedy

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY

BOSTON (AP) — President Johnson paid a 45-minute visit to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., today before returning to Washington after a quick campaign swing through New England.

It was 12:40 a.m. when the President arrived at New England Baptist Hospital, where Kennedy is recuperating from a broken back incurred in a plane crash last June.

Joan Kennedy, wife of the senator, was in the hospital room with her husband during the President's visit.

Afterward, she escorted Johnson to the door where in an impromptu news conference, Johnson said he found "Ted is very cheerful and in wonderful spirits."

"We talked about legislation, the record of the Congress and about the election and Ted expressed the hope that we will come back in October," the President said.

Johnson added, "I will try to."

In answer to a reporter's question whether the subject of Kennedy's brother, Robert F. Kennedy, the former attorney general now a candidate for the Senate in New York, had come up, the President said it had.

"Both of us are interested in him and we are very sure he's going to win," he said.

He also predicted that Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, will win his Senate race in California.

The president said the remainder of the conversation with Kennedy was about "his pretty wife and his children and about my family."

Other Kennedy callers were 15 members of the senator's Washington and Boston staff, many of whom were seeing him for the first time since the plane crash June 19.

Barry Declares Nixon Would Be State Secretary

would consult former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Nixon and "other experienced leaders seasoned in world affairs" before he appointed anyone to the office of secretary of defense or other critical national security posts.

Wagner said he arranged the special interview for the four with Goldwater, who has not held a formal news conference since the start of his active campaign.

Goldwater will be doing most of his campaigning this week from the rear platform of his campaign special. Mounted on it is a heart with the legend "In your heart you know he's right."

"I know we are still the underdogs," Goldwater declared before he pulled out of Washington Monday night. "We'll probably be the underdogs right up to Election Day, but the campaign is moving and moving well right now."

Goldwater told a rain-soaked sendoff rally at Union Station: "Our campaign is turned and the turn is up."

He said President Johnson is "burning up taxpayers' money like a minute campaigning all over the country."

In Cincinnati tonight, the GOP nominee will deliver a national televised campaign address.

Personal Injury Suit Begins in District Court

A personal injury suit in which requested damages total more than $600,000 started in District Court this morning with jury selection and Judge William M. Calvert on the bench.

Jake and Marjorie Cordova of Denver are suing Charles W. Copus and Claude E. Kleist for $14,900 plus interest and costs. The case has been brought to El Paso District Court from Denver District Court as a result of a request for a change of venue.

The Cordovas allege that on Feb. 17, 1963, three miles south and three miles east of Kiowa on a county road, the defendants' vehicle collided head-on with the car being driven by James Cordova in which Marjorie Cordova was a passenger.

It is further alleged that the accident was caused by the negligence of the defendant and that the Cordovas were injured.

In a counterclaim Copus said he was the operator and owner of the car and charges that Cordova drove recklessly and on the wrong side of the road. Copus requests $100,000.

In a further counterclaim, Kleist alleges the accident and injuries received by the plaintiffs were their own fault and due to negligence. Kleist states he was injured and is suing for $430,000. He also requests a body judgment and that the Cordovas be confined in jail until the sum is paid.

State Racing Fans Collect Big Payoffs

DENVER (AP)—Racing fans collected big payoffs at three Colorado tracks Monday and Tuesday night.

The twin quinella at the Cloverleaf greyhound track near Loveland was good for $3,044.60 to two ticket holders. The "twin quin" at Colorado Springs dog track amounted to $1,360.80.

United Fund Drive Reaches Halfway Mark

The United Fund drive, with only 17 days to go, has almost reached the halfway mark in its goal to raise $484,800. At the mid-campaign meeting this morning, collections thus far totaled $211,329.

The deadline for the drive is Oct. 15, but Bill Pfeiffer, general chairman of the United Fund, noted that some organizations and companies had only just begun their campaigns.

Pfeiffer and heads of the various committees felt confident, however, that the goal would be reached by mid-October. There are 33 United Fund agencies in the Pikes Peak Region that will benefit by the money.

Following is a breakdown of the various categories, their quotas, and money collected thus far: business and industry, $229,000; $112,153; service clubs, $26,900; $13,000.

Commercial, $22,000; $5,432; special gifts, $35,000; $24,603; neighborhood, $25,000; $409; professional, $23,600; $8,314; and public service, $48,000; $1,910.

No quotas were given to the three military establishments here. Ft. Carson has contributed $35,000; Ent Air Force Base, $7,735; and the Air Force Academy, $3,003.

Four Escapees From Zeb Pike Are Captured

Four teenage girls who escaped from Zebulon Pike Center after attacking Kathryn P. Kroger, the night supervisor, were picked up by the police department early Monday morning, the sheriff's office reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Vincent Denboska, one of the girls asked Miss Kroger to put on a light for her just as the girls were going into their rooms. When she stepped in front of the girl, she was grabbed round the throat and forced into the room and down on the bed.

Miss Kroger told the officer that the girl was choking her and that she demanded the keys. They were handed over to her and the woman was then locked in the room while the girls escaped.

Manitou Police Officers A. J. Licastro and D. H. Fahrenkrug apprehended them early Monday in Manitou Springs and all four were returned to the detention home.

Dr. Lehmberg Slates Make-Up Services

First Methodist Church will have a "make-up" service at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening in Lehmberg Chapel. The sermon preached last Sunday morning will be delivered.

Dr. Lehmberg explains the "make-up" service in these words: "We have quite a few members who go out of town over the weekend, especially in the fall of the year. The Wednesday night services are planned for them and for others who cannot attend the regular Sunday worship hour."

Dr. Lehmberg has planned the continuance of the services throughout October, or longer, if there is need for them.

Moscow (AP)—The Soviet Union has fired the head coach of its national soccer football team.

The officials news agency Tass said today Nikolai Morozov had replaced Konstantin Kheskov as head coach. No reason was given for the switch. Bestov's team lost to Spain earlier this year in the European Soccer Cup finals.

Peak Tolls About to Eclipse '63

The 1964 Pikes Peak Highway tolls are within 600 of eclipsing the 1963 mark of 251,003, according to Jack Sullivan, road superintendent.

He said the 406 visitors Monday pushed this season's total to over the 250,400 mark. Sullivan predicted that last year's total, when the road was open through all of October, should be exceeded Tuesday or Wednesday.

The toll gate is open 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. The new summer house will stay open until the highway is closed for the season.

Scantly-Clothed Waitress Found Lacking Courtesy the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce to find out what percentage of the 15,000 tourist industry employees are courteous.

Research directors Al Emeric, 37, and Robert Fahey, 35, said only 100 of 2,000 employees tested passed the minimum requirement for courtesy. That's 5 per cent.

The group identified no persons, hotels or casinos. "Good waitresses," says Fahey, "take more pride in their ability to do the job itself than do cocktail waitresses." He and Emeric agreed that the cocktail waitress ranks lowest on the courtesy scale.

"The nicest cocktail girls are those who wear dresses as uniforms; the worst are those who are almost naked," says Fahey, a social psychologist by background.

"If a man wants gracious treatment from a cocktail waitress, he should place his order soberly, without looking at her or smiling," says Emeric, a motivational researcher.

"If you smile at them they react as if you were making a pass at them," he says.

"Scantly clad waitresses," says Fahey, "are more civil to women who are dressed and act cheaply than they are toward women who appear well-dressed and proper. We tested both types."

City Traffic Engineer Kiwanis Guest Speaker

City Traffic Engineer Don L. Smith will be guest speaker when the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club meets at noon Wednesday at the Acacia Hotel.

Smith will discuss the "Traffic situation in Colorado Springs," after being introduced by City Manager John Biery, Kiwanian of the Day.

A graduate of Notre Dame University, Smith was traffic engineer for the City of Miami, Fla., for nine years, and later served as traffic engineer for Dade County, Fla., with a population of over one million persons. He has been Colorado Springs city traffic engineer since July, 1962.

Famed Comedian Harpo Marx Dies After Surgery school and to him education was something that helped him read the racing form."

Chico, the piano-playing brother with Italian dialect, died in 1961.

He was the oldest of the five brothers whose plays and movies, such as "Animal Crackers," "Cocoanuts" and "A Night at the Opera" were considered classics of both stage and screen.

Groucho added: "I often wondered how such diverse personalities could come out of the same family. When Chico practiced the piano, my mother used to sit alongside him with a broom handle to make sure he got in a full half hour. Once the half-hour chore was over, Chico would disappear into the nearest poolroom and Harpo would slide on the piano stool."

"Even as a little kid, he was always thinking of Beethoven, Mozart and Bach. He should have had the lessons, but they cost 25 cents each and in our section of Yorkville, on the upper East Side of New York, that was a lot of money."

But Harpo did become one of the world's more famed harpists—although he never took a lesson. He couldn't read music, but he often soloed with major symphony orchestras.

Asked once to explain his appeal to intellectuals the world over — from Alexander Woolcott to George Bernard Shaw — Harpo answered modestly: "I'm just a great listener."

He claimed that his brothers never let him speak in the act because it would prove to the world that he was the only sane one in the family.

Actually, he started his pantomime act because his driving mother tossed him into show business on such short notice that she didn't have time to write lines for him.

Ironically, it took the talkies to make him a silent star. He once played the village idiot in a silent film called "Too Many Kisses."

Sheriff Holds Two On Separate Charges

Two men were booked into County Jail Monday, one for alleged assault and the second for disturbance, the sheriff's department reported.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Walters said that the first man, Bob L. Jennings, 40, 110 E. Taylor Ave., had a complaint signed against him by his wife, Carol Jennings, alleging assault.

The officer reported that Jennings attacked Mrs. Jennings hitting her about the face and body and swelling her cheek and eye.

The second man, Walter R. Thrasher, 48, 3800 N. Cascade Ave., is accused of shouting and screaming at Mrs. Margaret Cordova, 2008 N. 7th St., while she was at Furr's Food Market on North Hancock Avenue.

Presidential Security to Be Given Priority nominee, President Johnson, has the protection that goes with his office.

Warren Commission called for a drastic overhaul of the system of guarding the president and said that legislation making the murder of a president or vice president a federal crime is needed to avoid the confusion of various government agencies into the Dallas investigation.

Dirkens said that raised the question whether the legislation ought to be amended to make federal crimes also of assaults with intent to kill a president as well as conspiracies aimed at killing a President.

"Some suggestions have been made that the legislation should be extended to cover the protection of Cabinet members and even members of the Senate and House," he added.

In a separate interview Mansfield said that since the presidential panel will be weighing these questions, "it would be the better part of wisdom" to await its suggestions on "a broad new bill."

Carson Gets 11 Bids Monday for Demolition Work

Representatives of the U. S. Army District Office of the Corps of Engineers in Omaha opened 11 bids Monday for removal of 177 buildings at Ft. Carson.

Bids ranged from $1 each to $559.12 for one building. They will be submitted to the corps contracting office in Omaha to be considered and evaluated.

Porter & Winters Wrecking, 718 S. Bryce St., bid on all 177 buildings but four structures were withdrawn at the request of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to be used for educational purposes.

Bids were also made by companies in Pueblo, Henderson, Brighton, and New York City. Because of new construction planned for the mountain post, the first 98 buildings must be removed by Jan. 31, and the remaining 79 by March 27 next year.

The buildings, constructed during World War II, include two-story barracks and assorted one-story company-area buildings including mess halls and supply buildings.

'Peanuts,' Says City Manager About Valuation only about $142,000 in new revenue.

However, he pointed to needs of $427,000, including: a new fire station and furnishings, $100,000; new aerial truck, $53,000; 18 additional men for the police department and equipment, $90,000; complete improvement of Bird Farm Park, $84,000; and West Kiowa Street Drainage problem, $100,000.

Biery had previously spoken to the Centennial Sertoma Club on the proposed 1965 sales tax, and the Colorado Springs Rotary Club on his suggested $8.4 million capital improvements program over the next five years. He also participated in a panel last Saturday at Colorado College on financing of local government, sponsored by the Colorado Springs Charter Association.

Biery has recommended that the City Council adopt a two per cent sales tax to reduce the city mill levy and pay for the $8.4 million capital improvements program.

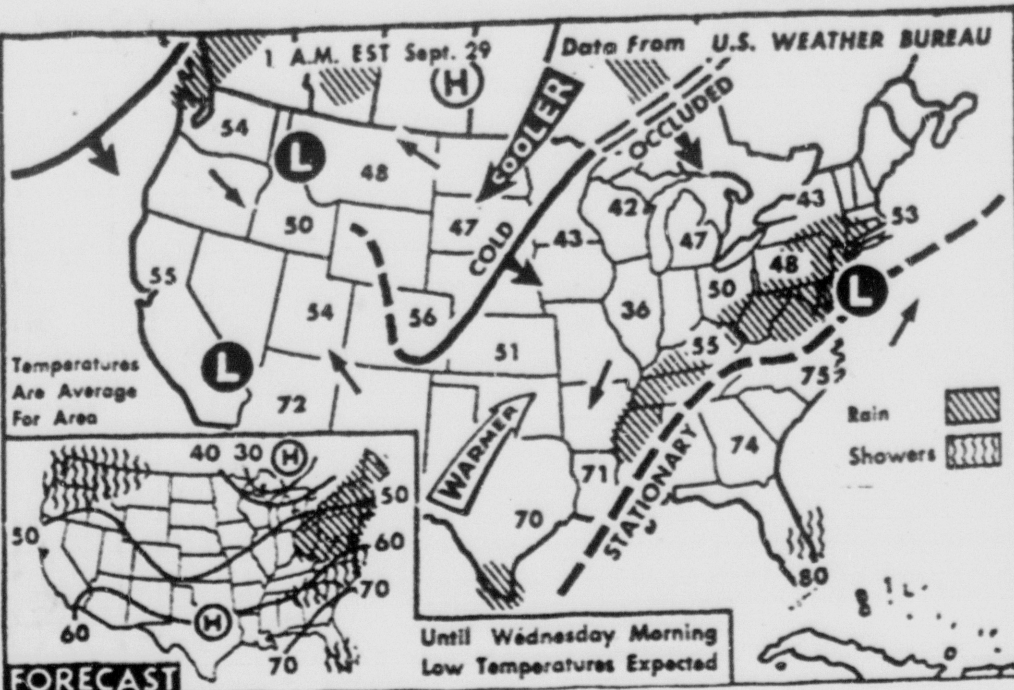

Shed Destroyed By Blaze Monday

A shed in the rear of the residence of Henry Cooper, 419 S. Weber St., was completely destroyed by fire Monday. Contents, consisting of a couch and various other things, also were destroyed. A garage nearby was slightly damaged.

The Fire Department got an alarm at 4:38 p.m. and Companies 1, 4 and the aerial responded. The report of the Fire Department is that the fire was caused by burning trash in a barrel too close to the shed.

A grass fire on Monument Creek, near the Bijou viaduct, was put out by Company 3, on a 3:47 p.m. alarm Monday.

At 5:41 p.m. Monument Company 1 put out a trash fire in an ash pit at the residence of Lilian Hill, 216 Pueblo Ave., as burning trash in an ash pit is illegal.

WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Showers and rain are expected over most of the Atlantic coast states, the lower Lakes area and the eastern Ohio Valley on Tuesday night. Showers are forecast for the Pacific Northwest. It will be cooler from the Dakotas to the upper Lakes area and warmer in the southern Plains and the Ohio Valley.

gress have decided that the Supreme Court has gone too far, far beyond its constitutional authority to interpret laws made by congress.

"Five men can sit on the Supreme Court bench and overrule what the people and congress have voted for. The people of Colorado," he said, "voted to apportion the state senate according to the federal system. The court has struck this down."

"Congress is elected by the people, whereas the Supreme Court is appointed not elected. I believe in the balance and separation of powers. But the Supreme Court has gone beyond its authority to interpret laws, it's writing them."

Chenoweth expressed concern about foreign imports. "We should protect American industry. We should protect our own people. That's my first responsibility if I stay on in Washington."

"We Republicans believe in staffs' rights and freedom of the individual," he said. "And I have no doubt about the outcome of the election in November, if we can get our story to the people."

Chenoweth praised local GOP candidates, most of whom were introduced preceding his speech.

Hodges Blasts Goldwater At Rally in Springs of the 50 in the coming general election — Arizona, Alabama and Mississippi.

While predicting that he also put a few good words for Evans.

"I don't understand how the voters from this district can keep sending a man to Congress who never had any major legislation passed in Congress in 20 years — and who keeps voting 'No' President Johnson needs the help in Congress of new, young and able men like Frank Evans, not that old fellow that's there now," he said.

Hodges quoted Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and Gov. George Romney of Michigan, all Republicans, in which each one of those men opposed Goldwater at one time or another in this presidential election year.

The secretary quoted a recent editorial by the Saturday Evening Post in which the magazine announced its support for the first Democratic presidential candidate it has ever supported:

"... For the good of the Republican Party, which his candidacy disgraces, we hope that Goldwater is crushingly defeated."

He said it was discriminatory and regressive and harms the working man and old age pensioner and "the little guy in any walk of life" who must spend every dollar he earns to sustain his standard of life. "Such a sales tax is an added burden to him."

A protest meeting has been called by the "Consumers Against Sales Tax" for 3 p.m. Thursday in the Little Theater of City Auditorium. All consumers, businessmen and anyone interested in protesting the sales tax are invited to attend.

Members of the committee are Hibbard, Norton Bain of Bain's Clothing; Duane Graham, assistant to the manager of Montgomery Ward and Co.; and Joe Pieper of Pieper's Rexall Drugs.

Biery's sales tax proposal drew its first public fire Saturday morning during a Saturday morning panel discussion on financing local government at Colorado College, sponsored by the Colorado Springs Charter Association.

Ralph W. Schreiber Died Monday at Home

Ralph W. Schreiber, 642 Val Jean Place, a teacher at the Harrison High School, died Monday at his home. He had been a resident of the Pikes Peak Region seven years, and was a member of St. Pauls Catholic Church.

Mr. Schreiber was born in Ransom, Kan., July 19, 1927. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia Schreiber, of Colorado Springs; a daughter, Susan Marie Schreiber; a son, Richard Lee Schreiber, all of Colorado Springs; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schreiber, Ransom, Kan.; a sister, Mrs. Dean Cordor, Oklahoma City, Okla., and a brother, Clarence Schreiber, Ransom, Kan.

Rosary will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Swan Drawing Room. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at St. Pauls Catholic Church. The Rev. Michael Harrington will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

McNamara Cut Millions, Says Secret Report

Staff. The Army's anti-tank program was slashed by $31.7 million and one of the service's $13.3 million helicopter programs was killed.

Secretary McNamara's cutbacks in high priority Naval projects were even more drastic. Funds requested to modernize the fleet were cut almost in half.

With one mighty stroke of his pen, McNamara sank the Navy's request of $410.5 million for another nuclear-powered attack carrier, while ordering the admirals to develop a new, restricted role for these giants of the seas.

Under this new concept, the Navy's huge attack ships will have a lesser part to play in any general nuclear war, but their application in limited warfare will be increased slightly.

He torpedoed the Navy's $240 million request for three nuclear-powered attack submarines, $201.5 million for seven additional destroyer escort ships, $138.5 million to modernize four attack-cargo ships and $16.9 million for a new fleet ballistic missile system.

THE BLOCKBUSTER
McNamara's economy blockbuster also wreaked havoc with the Navy's secret plans to modernize and expand its communications system throughout the seven seas.

The fallout from McNamara's cutbacks knocked out the Navy's $66.2 million request for a new "afloat communications system," $16.6 million for communication security equipment, and $36.5 million for the naval communication system portion of a new early warning system.

The Air Force's strategic missile and tactical aircraft weapons systems suffered substantial cutback from McNamara's economy wave.

He eliminated $311.4 million from the Minuteman missile system's construction program and $88.7 million from their supporting facilities by cutting out several hundred of these powerful ICBMs.

Another $40 million was slashed from the Titan III ICBM missile program, $33 million from two secret spy-in-the-sky satellite programs, $14.5 million from the airborne warning and control system and $98.4 million from the tactical mission support aircraft program.

Despite his 1963 promise to push research on the effect of Soviet super-bombs would have on U.S. missile reliability, Secretary McNamara shelved the Air Force's request for $12.5 million to get this program off the ground.

He eliminated $66.7 million for nuclear weapon test facilities, slashed $8.1 million from a new atomic detection system project and killed $15 million in classified nuclear-weapons facilities to be constructed overseas.

MORE TO COME

According to Defense Department insiders, these defense project cutbacks are just a starter.

After the November election, they forecast that Secretary McNamara will announce reductions in defense spending totaling nearly $4 billion for the coming year.

Hardest hit will be the naval shipyards. Plans are being made, despite Pentagon denials, to phase out all work in Navy facilities in Philadelphia, Brooklyn, and Boston over a period of three years.

Reductions of more than 50,000 in U.S. forces overseas also will be announced by McNamara after the election if President Johnson wins.

PENTAGON FLASHES

Defense Department officials are holding unclassified advanced planning briefings for industry and business executives throughout the country to "present" McNamara's defense program. Meetings are scheduled for Chicago (Sept. 29-30), Dallas (Oct. 13-14) and Los Angeles (Oct. 28-29). The sessions are being sponsored by the National Security Industrial Association on the personal request of Defense Secretary McNamara.

On September 8, 1964, the Central Intelligence Agency intercepted a broadcast in Spanish from Havana stating: "It is speculated in diplomatic circles in Havana that the oceanographic studies of the seas that surround Cuba and all of the Gulf of Mexico, started by the Soviet Union, could be the first step in installing bases for underwater rockets."

Succession Proposal Faces Congress Lag

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Monday passed a constitutional amendment to deal with the questions of presidential succession and disability, but there is no chance the House will act on it this year.

In the case of a vacancy in the office of vice president, the amendment provides that the president shall nominate someone to fill the office. The nominee would fill the post after being confirmed by a majority of both branches of Congress.

On the question of disability, the measure establishes a method for a president to turn over the duties of his office temporarily to the vice president and then to reassume them when he has recovered.

If the president were unable to declare his disability, the vice president could take over the duties of the office by transmitting to Congress, with the concurrence of a majority of the heads of executive departments, a declaration that the chief executive was unable to function.

In case a dispute arose as to the resumption of his powers, Congress would settle the issue.

Peyton News
By MRS. LEROY COTTON — Phone 749-2335

Mrs. Leroy Cotton, Terry and Robbie were Thursday afternoon visitors of Mrs. Chuck Camp, Cathy and Billy.

Lana Gehring was a Thursday overnight guest of Marilyn, Sherrie and Terry Cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Bangert and family were Thursday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ferguson and daughters.

The Peyton High School girls' and boys' baseball teams played Miami - Yoder teams Thursday at Miami - Yoder. The Peyton girls won the game they played, but the Peyton boys lost their game.

Don't forget the monthly meeting of the Peyton Volunteer Fire Department Saturday night, Oct. 3, at the Fire House.

Mrs. John Hale and Mrs. Arnold Gehring, Tony and Jana Marie were brief Friday afternoon callers on Mrs. Leroy Cotton, Terry and Robbie.

The Peyton Ladies Guild met Wednesday afternoon for a dessert luncheon of ice cream, cake, coffee and iced tea at the home of Mrs. Melvin Fields. Mrs. Arnold Gehring and Mrs. Ben Kinnaman assisting. There were 17 members, five children and two visitors present. Mrs. Nellie Wray, a former member, and Mrs. Birdsey, of Colorado Springs, were there. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Emil Pohlson. The Lord's Prayer was repeated and the inspiration, "Two Days" was read. A history of the birthday of the National Anthem was read by Mrs. Emil Pohlson. After roll call, reading of the minutes and treasurer's report, thank you notes were read from Mrs. Cecil Farthing and the Leroy Cotton family. An invitation was given to the Guild members to the 40th wedding anniversary open - house for Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cleece.

The Guild members were asked to compete in a slogan contest for the "Gold Bond Project" for the percolator. "Make it catchy, short, but percolate some points," is the word. Motions were carried that we finish quilts and send clothing to the Navajo Indian Mission in New Mexico. Anyone having good used clothing which they have no use for any more can leave it either at the home of Mrs. Clara Hamlin or the home of Mrs. Melvin Fields. The cookie committee for September is Mrs. Bryan Grimes and Mrs. Gertrude Payne and for October, Mrs. Al Fuchs and Mrs. Donald Drees. The meeting then adjourned, followed by the program with Mrs. Al Fuchs giving a reading on "Colorado History," which was very interesting. The next meeting will be held Oct. 21, with Mrs. Harvey Gieck and Mrs. Stanley Addison, and with Mrs. Bryan Grimes in charge of the program. The Peyton Ladies Guild has been having picnics and special meetings, but at the meeting held Sept. 16 the Gold Bond project chairman announced some special "point" plans. Posters and pictures of the 84 cup percolator urn are to be seen at Hugh Kelly's Sale Building, Louie Fuchs Service Station. There will also be posters at the Peyton Trading Post and Peyton School. Mrs. Emil Pohlson is going to photograph one of these. The Guild announces a slogan contest. A prize will be given to the woman, young person and man who write the best slogan. This is to earn points which will help get the percolator urn. Make them catchy, but short. This urn will be used for community activities.

Mrs. H. K. Fosha, of Calhan, was a substitute teacher for Mr. Stewart Friday, while he went to Boulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Finney were Saturday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Cotton and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Cotton and family were Sunday supper guests of Mrs. Ruby Cotton of Calhan. Other callers were, Mrs. Mamie Ries, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burkett and granddaughter and Mrs. Clara Klondike.

Mrs. E. O. Sherman, Mrs. Gertrude Tanner, Mrs. Lloyd Weatherly, Mrs. Edgar Smith, and Mrs. Gib Kelly of the Eastonville Homemakers Extension Club attended the District 6 meeting at Green Mountain Falls, Thursday.

Callers at the Gib Kelly home last week were Mr. and Mrs. Russ Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Smith, Lois Peterson and Diann Flemming, all of Colorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Gil Kelly and Randy were Sunday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kelly and family of Colorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sayers, of Colorado Springs, were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Addison.

Mrs. Gene Bertrand and Mrs. Clarence Cook attended the "Hearing Clinic" Wednesday, which was held at the county superintendent's office in Colorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Ishmael and Linda and Mrs. C. H. Vette were visiting Mrs. Hyde and Mrs. Dotson of Wyoming, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lough were Saturday night dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hollie Wade of Calhan, at the Village Inn in Colorado Springs. The occasion was a pre - celebration in honor of the Lough's wedding anniversary, October 4. They later attended the installation of officers of the Eastern Star at the City Auditorium.

Dear Abby--
By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How Much!

DEAR ABBY: What would you think about a girl who told you she was sorry she couldn't go to a certain dance with you because she didn't have anything to wear, and then showed up at the dance with another guy? —JUST WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If she showed up without a dress, I'd believe her.

DEAR WONDERING: If she is 16, he is 16 feet tall and weighs 190 pounds. He has good character and has worked after school and week-ends ever since he was 16. He bought himself a car and pays the upkeep and insurance himself. He also buys his own clothes. His father and I have just started our own business and I work every day so we won't have to hire a cashier. I also like to keep my home nice, so I do all my heavy housework on the week-ends in addition to the regular washing and ironing.

When I tell my son to scrub the bathroom and kitchen floors and to wash the windows and woodwork, he gets real ugly and says that's MY job, not HIS. We have had some very hot battles over this. Am I wrong to demand that a healthy 18-year-old son help me? —TIED MOTHER

DEAR TIED: Your son sounds like a good boy who would probably give you a hand with the heavy work if you asked him—not told him. Teen-agers become hostile and negative when commands are fired at them. If you were to make him feel like a man whose help you needed rather than a little boy who had better take orders from his mother, or else, he'd probably sail right through the chores without a gripe.

DEAR ABBY: My wife reads your column every day and I read it when she makes me. We have been having an argument about something I hope you can settle for us. How should a woman wear her wedding rings? My wife puts on her diamond engagement ring first, and her wedding band right next to it. I say she is wearing them backwards—that her diamond goes on her finger AFTER her wedding band. I have pointed out that I see 99 out of 100 women wearing their rings that way. But my wife says they are wearing theirs backwards, and she knows she is right because a woman gets her diamond first and it should be put on first, before the wedding ring. Please put your reply in the paper. —BIG JOHN

DEAR JOHN: Even though the diamond is usually presented to the girl first, the wedding ring should be placed on the finger first. Diamonds may be a girl's best friend—but that simple little round ring is placed nearer the heart.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Needs To Know" In Mankato, Minnesota: You can find out how old she really is from the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the city of her birth, but I would not consider marrying a woman whose "real" age I had to learn in that manner.

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

Society and Club Activities

FIRST LESSON — The Junior Cotillion, under the direction of Jon and Vivian Williams, started the new dance season Thursday in the ballroom of the Broadmoor Hotel. The very young set wore their dress-up frocks, suits and white gloves, and the beginners started by learning to bow as they asked the young ladies to dance. HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Gals: I saw the darlinest pair of gloves at a party recently. When I asked the woman where she bought them, she said she had made them!

She bought plain white, cotton, shortie gloves on sale, bought a rhinestone bracelet at a dime store, cut it in "half" and sewed each half to the outside cuffs.

Absolutely adorable. She said she got her idea from some gloves that she had seen, but the price didn't fit her pocketbook.

So? I came home, looked through my junk jewelry, and found some old pearls, sewed them on my gloves, and now have a precious pair of bracelet gloves. Pearls are beautiful on black cotton, as are rhinestones, and this handwork can be done while watching TV. So watch your sales, gals, and buy some shorties and dress them up.

These gloves are adorable for the holidays or any time after five. I have washed mine twice and it didn't hurt them at all. Wouldn't these gloves make nice Christmas presents for those who have just everything? And think how individual they would be!

And don't overlook the possibility of putting a tiny row of beads along the "edge" of the cuff. That's darling, too. —Love Heloise

Dear Heloise: I am thirteen and enjoy dill pickles, but hate struggling to get them out of the jar. So I took an old fork and bent the tines up to form a hook. Now the fork goes into the jar and brings out a whole pickle with no struggle. —N.L.L.

Dear Heloise: I have a list of long distance friends, mostly former neighbors. They say a letter from me is almost like a visit home. Here is my method:

Dear Heloise: I find that my bathroom rug wears out much sooner than the seat cover, so having several seat covers and no rugs to match, I removed the strings and now use these covers as individual bath mats for the little members of the family.

Since these little mats are small enough for the children to handle easily, I find that they always pick them up and put them over the edge of the tub after their bath. Also, they are much easier to handle on wash days than large bath mats. —Dee Evans

Dear Heloise: It is extremely dangerous to use a lighted match to look for a gas leak. Shaving lather will do the trick. Put the lather on the pipe, and where there is a leak, bubbles will begin to form. —Mrs. E. Kirk

Women's Association Will Meet at Church
The Women's Association of Faith United Presbyterian Church will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Rodgers will show slides from Japan and Korea.

All ladies of the church are invited.

West opened the three of hearts and the king was played from dummy. A small diamond was led at trick two and declarer put up the king from his hand. With a smooth motion unbetrayed by the least flicker of hesitation, West played the eight of diamonds. On the next lead from the closed hand, West followed with the ten, and South—who had no reason to suspect the actual situation—ducked in dummy hoping that East had started with the ace-doubleton.

Eas was in with the jack of diamonds, and he returned a heart to dummy's ace. Since South had only eight top tricks, he led another diamond to drive out the ace. West had carefully preserved that card for a late entry, and he was in to cash a sufficient number of heart tricks to send the declarer down to defeat.

Observe that, if West wins the first diamond lead, he can subsequently be retired from the play. After the heart suit is cleared, South reenters his hand to lead another diamond, and the trick is ducked around to East's jack. The latter is unable to put his partner in, and declarer cashes sufficient diamond tricks to make four no-trump.

ABWA Names Mrs. Cody 1964 Woman of the Year

The Pikes Peak Chapter of ABWA chose Mrs. Phyllis B. Cody as the "Woman of the Year" to represent the club at the national convention at Minneapolis Oct. 16 through 18. Mrs. Cody is a charter member of the chapter, having served on the executive board.

Mrs. Cody is the owner and manager of the Cody's Tax Service at 509 S. Tejon St., which keeps her busy in Income Tax Accounting and Business Management. A book by Mrs. Cody is being published entitled "Conflict in the Mind."

A native of Nebraska, Mrs. Cody was orphaned at an early age and attended schools and college in Marysville and Manhattan, Kan. She has a varied business experience including five years in the Audit Department of Internal Revenue Service; Superintendent of the Independent Life and Accident Insurance Co. with five agents in her charge; dramatic coach directing the drama - business - sales and advertising of local talent productions in all of the New England States; accountant for five corporations of Uranium and Ore Companies; medical typist for several doctors; restaurant owner and manager and owner - manager of a Collection and Detective Agency for a period of several years with a nationwide coverage. She also had a dress making business and when she sold the business, there was a current order for over a thousand dresses.

Her husband, Wallace E. Cody, is a native of Colorado and is a Civil Service Employee at the Air Force Academy. They have a daughter and two grandchildren living in Wichita, Kan. She is a member of the Christian Church and has majored in religion.

The ABWA is a national organization with over 45,000 members and is composed of woman in all types of occupations. The association is not a club or a social group but is for education and betterment of the employee - employer relationship. During the past year approximately $40,000 was expended by the Association for Scholarships to deserving women in the United States.

A novel touch for informal meals is a set of soup bowls with a single short, stubby handle on one side. The American version of this French staple is the use of stipple-finish plastic in or a social group but is for education and betterment of the employee - employer relationship. During the past year approximately $40,000 was expended by the Association for Scholarships to deserving women in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Padgett have returned from a three weeks motor trip through the east and to Canada.

At White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., they were guests at the Green Briar Hotel, where Mr. Padgett attended a four-day conference of the National Real Estate Counselors.

Mrs. Mary Stewart Grant of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Phil Frantz of Denver, both former Colorado Springs residents, were the inspiration for a small luncheon get-together Monday at the Kissing Camels Golf Club. Others present were Mrs. Douglas Corley, Mrs. Harry Holman, Mrs. Joseph Reich Sr., Mrs. Ben Wendelken, Mrs. Earl Bryson, Mrs. Harry McCall, Mrs. Douglas Jardine, Mrs. Raymond Haigler, Mrs. G. R. Morath, and Mrs. Charles O. Giese.

Mrs. Grant was at one time a member of the school board of District 11, Colorado Springs.

Miss Jo Ann Gayler has pledged Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, where she is a freshman. A graduate of Manitou Springs, High School, Miss Gayler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Gayler of Green Mountain Falls.

United States Ambassador and Mrs. Leland Barrows of Cameroon, West Africa who have been house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Verl Bratton, 1205 W. LaPaloma Way have left for Washington enroute to their station in Yaounde, Cameroon.

The Barrows last visited the Brattons five years ago while Mr. Barrows was Director of the U. S. International Cooperation Administration for southeast Asia stationed in Saigon, Vietnam prior to his appointment as Ambassador to Cameroon.

Their short U. S. visit at this time was occasioned by their daughter entering the University of Kansas and their son entering the graduate school at UCLA. The Barrows and Brattons are all University of Kansas alumni.

Hostesses will be Marge Hechel and Donna Liddle.

Polyannas to Be Guests of Mrs. Hough

The Polyanna Club will meet with Mrs. Lillian Haugh, 907 N. Weber St., at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Daniel Mullins of Chicago is the houseguest of Mrs.

Arthur Breit of 1325 La Veta Way. The two families were neighbors in northwest Chicago at one time. Mrs. Mullins has also been visiting in Denver.

Three Colorado Springs students have enrolled at DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., for the fall term. They are Patricia Anne Beadles, a junior, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. O. Beadles of 115 E. Columbia St.; Stewart M. Brown, a freshman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Brown of 3 Penrose Blvd., and Ronald E. Klinkiewicz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Klinkiewicz of 25 N. Amherst.

Miss Shirley Lipscomb, a 1946 graduate of Cheyenne Mountain High School, is attending Colorado State University at Ft. Collins and has recently pledged Gamma Phi Beta Sorority. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wood Lipscomb of 1608 Ridgeway.

Attending Monmouth College at Monmouth, Ill. this fall is Miss Fielda A. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding A. Smith of 318 N. Farragut St. She was graduated last June from Elgin Academy High School.

Returning to the Shattuck Episcopal College, a preparatory school for boys at Fairbault, Minn. are Hunter Antonides, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Lundberg Jr. of 260 Polo Dr., and Pierre Hetrick, son of Dr. and Mrs. Matthew Hetrick of 1928 Wood Ave.

Among new students registering at Goucher College, Baltimore Md., is Miss Rosayin Israel, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Alvin Israel of 1311 N. Howard St. Miss Israel is a graduate of Wasson High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society.

Miss Jannis Clark, 1111 N. Meade, was elected a student senate representative from the freshman class at Northwestern State College, Alva, Okla., in balloting Sept. 23, by first-year students.

Miss Clark won election to one of two senate posts held by members of her class. Eight other candidates were in the race.

Spirited campaigns by backers of various candidates preceded election of leaders of the largest freshman class in the history of the college.

Miss Clark, a 1964 graduate of Palmer High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clark.

Your Luggage No Longer Tells All

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once, it was by their luggage the hotel people usually knew them. But no longer.

Victor Giles of New York's Governor Clinton Hotel says luggage no longer is a key to the affluence of its owner.

Now, just about everyone has good-looking matched luggage, said Giles. He figures it's because of "ready availability of luggage at moderate prices" and the increase in travel in general.

But, said Giles, there's always the exception—the eccentric who is well endowed but doesn't believe anything more durable than a cardboard box is necessary for his travels.

TO TRAVEL RIGHT, TRAVEL LIGHT!—So says Carol Lane, women's travel director. Everything a travel-wise woman needs for a two-week vacation can be packed in one 16-inch suitcase. Impossible? Not so. The secret: mix-match costumes, crease-resistant fabrics, planned packing with "luggage leaves." Miss Lane demonstrates how it's done as the highlight of her talk, "Let's Go Adventuring," Wednesday, Oct. 14, at the Thrift House luncheon to be held at the Broadmoor Hotel.

Travel Director to Speak At Thrift House Luncheon

Inviting Americans to discover the interest of Miss Carol Lane, women's travel director of Shell Oil Co., who will address the Episcopal Church Women's Thrift House Wednesday, Oct. 14 luncheon.

Often called the most traveled woman in the nation, Miss Lane will present "Let's Go Adventuring!" at the Broadmoor Hotel at 1 p.m., according to Mrs. Cortland Cool, president of the Thrift House board of directors.

Miss Lane's theme refers to the unique and interesting places America offers for long and short trips. She will mention many little known areas she visited on a research trip last summer, crossing the United States from the Pacific Coast to New York via auto.

Dilled Cucumbers

1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
6 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons cold water
2 tablespoons dill seed
2 thin medium-size cucumbers

In a shallow container, stir together the sugar, salt, vinegar and water until sugar dissolves. Tie dill seed in a small square of cheesecloth and add. Scrub cucumbers and slice thin; if cucumbers have waxy coating, pare before slicing. Mix with marinade; cover tightly; refrigerate overnight. At serving time, drain cucumbers, add more salt if desired; sprinkle with a little of the dill seed from cheesecloth bag. Makes 8 servings.

Castro Promises All Payments to Be Made

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro says the Cuban government, which owes an estimated $2.5

billion, "will make any sacrifice before failing to pay a single cent."

"If we ask the people if they prefer a hard year and pay our debts, or fail to pay, we know the people prefer to pay," he told a crowd in Havana's Revolutionary Square Monday night.

Castro blamed the sharp drop in world sugar prices for the lack of foreign exchange which has forced Cuba to curtail imports.

"We have a fixed price for sugar sold to the Soviet Union, but the increases and declines of the sugar price affect us in obtaining dollars," he said.

The world sugar price has dropped from 13 cents to less than 4 cents within a year.

Three Children Perish As Heater Explodes

ATHOL, Mass. (AP) — Three children — two girls and a brother — perished Monday night when a space heater exploded in the living room of their two-family home.

Fire authorities said the children might have been saved if the mother had summoned help immediately instead of trying to battle the flames herself.

Another child, 19-month-old Alan Spooner, was in critical condition at Memorial Hospital with extensive burns.

The mother, Kathleen Spooner, 27, and the seven members of the Arthur Powell family which occupied the other half of the three-story frame structure were not hurt seriously.

The victims were Virginia Spooner, 7, her sister, Patricia, 2, and her brother, Peter, 4.

Their father, Roger, a sailor, was reported serving aboard a submarine en route to England.

The world's first atomic-powered merchant ship, the N.S. Savannah, was launched July 21, 1959, at Camden, N.J.

CAPITOL STUFF

By JERRY GREENE

WASHINGTON — The capital is still pretty badly shaken over the television-type national convention thrown by the Democrats in Atlantic City, and even some of the hardened political hacks are beginning to get the blue horrors over prospects of election night.

That's because one of the vocal computers is certain to announce that somebody has been elected President within 30 seconds after the first polls close in East Blueberry, Maine, which naturally will happen five or six hours before many millions of taxpayers west of the Mississippi River will have a chance to vote.

All sort of experts, even some members of Congress, have been grumbling over this new "vote projection" by-product of the electronic age. So, in an effort to find out if anybody was thinking of trying to do anything about the problem, we invited Big Ears Clancy to lunch.

His name isn't Clancy, but his ears are large, and he must remain otherwise unidentified because he has bills to pay, he likes to eat, and he is a demon agent of the Federal Communications Commission. The FCC is the traffic cop of the airways in a big brotherly sort of way.

"You can bet next month's rent," Big Ears said, "that the commissioners aren't going to pick up this hot one. If Congress tries to pass a batch of fresh laws to equalize timing the release of election returns, I should live so long as to hear the end of that filibuster."

"Kindly do not bother me further with politics," he said. "We got all the really legitimate worry we can handle. You would not believe the troubles we have, some of which are not even caused by television. You know about 'citizens' radio'?"

The term was unfamiliar. Big Ears explained that he referred to limited commercial use of low-power radio by taxicab companies or any firm using radio communications, usually with mobile units.

STATIC IN ALASKA SOMETIMES ACCENTS SEX

"We got in this flock of complaints from Anchorage, Alaska," Big Ears said. "The citizens' radio licensees were having an awful time. Several of the firms were using girls as operators and dispatchers. Well, they began to get interference."

We mentioned that we could never get anything but static on our own short-wave set.

"It wasn't that kind of interference," Big Ears explained patiently. "It was voices. Men's voices, and they were trying to make dates with the girls."

This sort of thing is frowned upon by all sorts of FCC rules, laws and regulations. It was bad enough that the unidentified stations, or stations, were interfering with the conduct of business. It was unforgivable that the operators were annoying the women.

"What did you do about it?" "Routine," Big Ears replied. He said that the FCC agents got out their mobile unit with direction finders and nailed down the spout from which the "interference" originated.

DRUG STORE COWBOYS WITH WALKIE-TALKIE S

"It was drug store cowboys," Big Ears said sadly. "Right in downtown Anchorage, on the corner in front of a drug store, here was this gang of young punks all decked out in cowboy suits."

"Back in my day we used to watch the girls go by. Not any more. These brats were listening to the girls go by. They were packing little walkie-talkies, tuned into the citizens' radio frequencies and having themselves a ball."

A little "fatherly advice" from the federal agents cleared the Alaskan airways, Big Ears said. But that was just a sample.

"There was this $160 - unit apartment in the Bronx," he said, pausing long enough to order a two-pound steak. "We had 36 complaints from that one apartment in a week. Did you ever know your TV set is also a transmitter? Well, it is. All sorts of this electronic stuff puts out radiation."

TRANSISTOR RADIOS FOUL UP PLANE INSTRUMENTS

We recalled that on one of Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton's fleeting pre-convention campaign trips aboard an airliner the crew practically tore the plane apart in mid-flight looking for a passenger using a transistor radio.

Seems some gadget was turned on, and it was fouling up the plane's navigation instruments. The culprit was discovered. There was no more cutting of TV interviews on sound tape while airborne.

"Yeah," Big Ears said. "They aren't kidding in those announcements about not using transistors in the planes. But get back to the Bronx. All of a sudden these 36 people couldn't get anything on their TV sets but Channel 4. We really had to sweat that one out, but we made it."

That smelled like a plot. "No," he said, "it was just one TV set in the building. When this guy tuned in to Channel 2, his set put out radiations on Channel 4, and that's all anybody else would get."

DIRTY POOL BY A TUGBOAT OUTFIT

He must have run across some plots and dirty pool played with unauthorized or unidentified radio stations.

"Yes," he said. "Criminal cases sometimes. But mostly not that serious. Like the tugboats down at Tampa, Fla. There was this tugboat outfit that used two-way radio to pass directions to the bridge of ships it was maneuvering to dock."

"Well, we get a squeal. All of a sudden, some of the ship skippers are getting screwy commands, and the harbor traffic is beginning to pile up."

"Yes, we found it. We almost always do. It was a rival tug company. The owner figured if he gets things jammed badly enough he might pick up a little business."

Big Ears wiped his chin and got up.

"As I was saying," he said, "please don't wish any politics on us. We got serious work to do."

New Gimmicks Featured on Television

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oh, the gimmicks they've got for television series this season.

The networks are reaching all over the map for shows based on atomic submarines, ghoulish families, domesticated dolphins, witches and animated mannikins.

What next? Here's what's next — seven people stranded on a desert island. You can see it tonight on CBS' "Gilligan's Island."

Gilligan is none other than Bob Denver, late beatnik buddy of "Dobie Gillis." He has dropped the goatee and bop talk to make the scene as leader of the band of refugees, who include Jim Backus, Tina Louise and Alan Hale.

"When Sherwood Schwartz, the producer, first told me about the idea for the series, I told him, 'Who are you kidding?'" recalls Denver.

"You shipwreck seven people on an island and where do you go from there?"

"I still didn't believe it was possible until I saw the first six scripts. By George, he came up with some great ideas, and now the possibilities are endless."

The castaways' plight is played strictly for laughs, with Denver portraying an ace bumbler. Despite the presence of the formidable Miss Louise, who once played Appassionata von Climax in "Li'l Abner" on Broadway, sex does not enter into the plot.

That's not merely because of network phobia of the subject, declared Denver — "once you put any of the characters into a sex situation in this series, the comedy is in trouble."

Bob at last gets to play his age — 29 — in "Gilligan's Island" after his retarded adolescence as Maynard. He is naturally grateful to the bearded beatnik; it was his first professional role and he still shakes his head over his luck. The part was supposed to be a minor one, but it built into almost costar status.

It also darned near blighted his budding career.

Farmers Dump Milk On Ground in France

PARIS (AP) — Signs of seriously increased consequences increased today in France's 10-day-old strike of milk producers trying to force the government to increase prices.

Farmers dumped milk on the ground to prevent a milkman from delivering it to his customers at Metz, in eastern France.

Farmers in Strasbourg decided to cut all deliveries, even to hospitals.

At Brest, in western France, a supermarket operator said he hoped to organize "commando" units to collect milk and put it on sale. Police feared counteraction from the farmers.

Man Found Guilty on Four Counts

Donald Goodman, 21, 314 E. Vermijo St., was found guilty Monday by Municipal Court Judge Allan Asher on three separate charges of being drunk and one charge of resisting police.

Judge Asher levied fines of $25 each on the charges, but suspended $75 on condition Goodman not again appear in city court on charges involving the use of alcohol.

Willie Brown Jr. was sentenced to 10 days in jail on a guilty finding of riotous conduct lodged against him by his wife Patricia Diane Brown, 523 S. Weber St.

Benjamin Salazar, 33, 623 E. Boulder St., was fined $25 on his guilty plea to being drunk. Judge Asher found Salazar guilty of riotous conduct and levied a $25 fine. Salazar was granted a 10-day stay of execution to produce a statement from a local hospital that he had taken care of the hospital bill of a man he is reported to have beaten Saturday night in city jail.

Judge Asher told Salazar that if the statement is presented, he would subtract the amount from Salazar's fine.

Victor Jones, 42, 326 E. Colorado Ave., testified that Salazar grabbed him and beat his head on the cement of the jail's drunk tank Saturday night, resulting in his being taken to a local hospital for treatment. Salazar said he did not remember the incident.

Jones was in jail on charges of resisting police, disorderly conduct, riotous conduct, breach of peace, drunkenness, and injury to private property. He pleaded not guilty and the judge set his trial for Monday. Jones' bond was set at $50.

Charges of failing to supervise minor children and evidence of failure were dismissed against Wanda Lee, 34, 234 Prospect Lake Dr., at the request of the complaining witness, Frances Bruce.

On the failure of the complaining witness to appear in court, charges of disorderly conduct and riotous conduct were dismissed against Lucy Parada, 29, 539 E. Cimarron St.

Judge Asher dismissed charges of riotous conduct, breach of peace, and drunkenness, against Fred Martinez, 30, 532 E. Cimarron St., on the request of Mrs. Martinez. But he warned the couple that if charges are brought again, they will not be dismissed.

Robert Miller, 21, Ft. Carson, was found guilty of being drunk. Half of his $30 fine was suspended on condition he not again appear in court on a drunk charge.

The case of Frank Williams, 20, 15 W. Rio Grande St., was continued until Oct. 12. Williams is charged with being drunk.

At the request of the complaining witness, Judge Asher dismissed charges of failure to supervise minor children and evidence of failure against Claire Cox, 24, 618 E. Boulder St.

Charges of breach of peace were dismissed against William Pearson, 75, and Verne Theobald, 69, both of 119 E. Vermijo St., on the request of the complainant.

Judge Asher set Oct. 19 for disposition on the cases of Larry Olson, 20, 2001 E. St. Vrain St., and Hazel Jensen, 55, 518 E. Platte Ave., who are charged with disorderly conduct, breach of peace, and riotous conduct by Olson's wife, Patricia. Mrs. Olson did not appear in court but the judge decided not to dismiss the charges, and ordered her to be brought in to request a dismissal if this is her desire.

Command Posts Move to Field

Major command posts within the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) moved to the field at Ft. Carson early Monday, for the first of a series of field training exercises to extend from 24 to 48 hours.

Headed by Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun, 5th Division and Carson commander, and his staff, the September FTX is devoted to tactical organization and orientation of personnel. Future exercises will involve tactical problems.

Communications through very high frequency and radio net with special emphasis on the use of landline teletype communication in the VHF system are being tested.

The exercise will include blackout and other security measures as part of the training.

Hodges Terms Goldwater 'An Extreme Radical'

Sen. Goldwater was described as "an extreme radical" by Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges during a press conference Monday afternoon.

"He is an extreme radical, and not radical left," said Hodges. "He is extreme in whatever he says and does."

Touring the Pikes Peak region delivering a series of both political and non-political speeches, Hodges answered questions on the election and the recent enactments of Congress that affect this region. Hodges predicted "an overwhelming victory for Johnson and Humphrey" in the forthcoming election. He estimated that Johnson will carry at least 40 states, the real difficulty being in the South.

"That is because of the emotional issue," he said, "but even that is being dissipated." He also predicted that Johnson will carry Texas by "the largest majority in many years."

He observed that big business seems to be supporting Johnson "because they have confidence in him. They are afraid of radical change, and are more confident of letting free enterprise move on its own." He estimated that "thousands, even hundreds of thousands of businessmen are going to Johnson."

In answer to a question he stated that the present administration's public works program is not similar to the W.P.A. of the 30's.

He foresaw the Trade Expansion Act as a definite boost in trade activity, especially for this region. He also foresaw an expansion of trade with iron curtain countries, and not on the "five year credit plan." He said that so far all our dealings with iron curtain countries have been cash on the barrelhead.

He said that world trade is increasing, and the trade between our allies and iron curtain countries is increasing, so

SPEAKER — Dr. J. Ralph Murray, president of Elmira (N. Y.) College, will address the Colorado Club of Elmira Alumnae at 6:30 p.m. today in the Garden of the Gods Club. While here, he is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Sinclair of Sedalia. Dr. Murray will attend the 47th annual meeting of the American Council on Education Wednesday through Friday in San Francisco and will also speak to alumnae groups in that city, Los Angeles, and Seattle.

Jury Allows $85,000 in Injury Suit

A district court jury Monday afternoon awarded Herbert A. Thornton of Henderson, Tex., and the Casualty Insurance Co. of California $85,000 in the personal injury suit they brought against the Transit Mix Concrete Co. and Larry Thurston Smith.

Thornton had requested $212,552.20 and the insurance company $8,141.12 plus costs.

Thornton claimed he was seriously injured May 10, 1962, on Nevada Avenue when Smith, as an agent for the Transit Mix Concrete Co. while driving a car belonging to the company, collided with the plaintiff's car at a signal light.

The Casualty Insurance Co., Workman's Compensation Insurance carrier was covering Thornton's employer at the time of the accident and stated it had spent $8,141.12 plus costs and attorney's fees in connection with Thornton's injuries.

The company requested to be reimbursed the total amount.

Local attorney James Moyer and lawyer Rex Houston of Henderson, Tex., represented Thornton and Dale Holst appeared for the insurance company. Don LaMora appeared for the defendants.

Academy Cadets Will Be Briefed On NATO Story

Military officers from nine North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations will "tell the NATO story" to Air Force Academy Third Classmen Saturday at 7:40 a.m. in the Arnold Hall theater.

The briefing is part of Military Training Course MT-215, Contemporary World Forces.

During the 30-minute presentation, officers from Canada, Denmark, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom, and the U.S. will explain why NATO was established and how it has blocked the spread of communist aggression in the NATO area.

Rear Admiral David B. Bell heads the international briefing team which is stationed at headquarters of NATO's Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic (SACLANT).

Team members are: Commander B. R. Bruland, Royal Norwegian Navy; Commander Poul E. Pedersen, Royal Danish Navy; Commander Manuel E. L. Vilarinho, Portuguese Navy; Commander Johan H. R. van der Willigen, Royal Netherlands Navy; Commander Valerio Del Nero, Italian Navy; Commander Edward Macey, Royal Navy; Lieutenant Commander Peter V. Betz Named To National Advisory Group

Fred M. Betz, Colorado publisher long identified with vocational education, was appointed Friday to the National Advisory Committee for Vocational Education, it was announced by Anthony J. Celebrezze, secretary of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Twelve members were chosen from the fields of labor, management, education, and one member each from the Departments of Agriculture, Labor and Commerce. The Act, signed into law by President Lyndon Johnson last December 18, names the Commissioner of Education of DHEW, Francis Keppel, as chairman.

Betz is now serving his third six-year term as a member of Colorado's State Board for Vocational Education, and is currently chairman of the board which includes five members, representing agriculture, labor, homemakers, distributive education and employers.

He has received appointments from Governors Lee Knous, Dan Thornton and Steve McNichols in recognition of his knowledge and interest in the field of vocational and technical training.

Last December Betz was one of five in the nation to receive given by the American Vocational Association at its annual meeting in Atlantic City.

SECTION B

SUICIDE STUDY — Colonel Robert M. Clark, member of the Admissions and Allocations Committee of the Pikes Peak United Fund, discusses the problem of suicide with Frank Cremonesi, president of the Mental Health Association. A major effort of the Mental Health Group is co-operative planning with other state and local agencies for a comprehensive community mental health plan to meet the needs of emotionally or mentally disturbed residents. Over 300 local residents are patients in the state hospital. It is expected that many of these will be treated in the community when the envisioned facility is in operation.

Electorate Buying Many Books

The electorate this year will be one of the most widely-read ever, according to Robert M. Laura, El Paso County Republican Chairman of the Goldwater Committee.

Goldwater's books, Why Not Victory and The Conscience of a Conservative have each sold 1,600 copies in the county.

Even more popular with local readers have been a Choice Not an Echo, by Phyllis Schlafly, 4,300 copies, and A Texan Looks at Lyndon, by J. Evetts Haley, 3,300 copies. John A. Stormer's None Dare Call It Treason has sold 1,500 copies in the county.

Two Goldwater pamphlets have also circulated widely. Goldwater Speaks on the Issues has sold 11,000 copies; his Keys to Victory has sold 1,000 copies.

Rifle Reported Taken From Car

An over and under 410-22 caliber rifle was taken from a car parked in front of the Palmer High School Gymnasium Monday, police reported.

James Sampson, of 1730 N. Wood Ave., told police his brother John had taken the gun to school with him Monday and had left it in his car while it was parked in front of the gym between 3 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. The car was left unlocked and when the boy returned the gun was gone. A box of shells and a transistor laying on the seat beside the gun were undisturbed, police said.

Treatment for Suicide Victims Discussed Here

Potential suicide victims hospitalization, 24 hour emergency service, consultation and education, according to Mrs. Hinds.

"During my training as a psychiatric nurse I remember families bringing patients apologetically to the hospital saying that they had kept the person at home as long as possible. When hospitalization is the only answer, this is only natural. If a patient can continue to work and live at home and be treated in such a comprehensive community mental health center, he will seek help earlier with a far better chance for complete recovery," Mrs. Hinds said.

Col. Clark learned that the cooperation between public and private facilities in the Pikes Peak Region is exceptionally good. By agreement with the courts, mental patients awaiting commitment to the State Hospital are held at Brady Hospital instead of in jail, as is still done in most other parts of the state. We are far ahead of some places in the enlightened care of the mentally ill," Cremonesi concluded. "We can be proud of what we have achieved, but we must dedicate ourselves to greater effort and greater achievement in the coming year."

"I have been told that too many parents feel disgraced by the child's attempt at suicide... too few recognize it as a symptom of a serious emotional problem and seek professional help," Mrs. Hinds said.

"It doesn't do much good to bring the patient to recovery, then send him home to try suicide again," Cremonesi commented. "It's like treating the man with a broken leg by examining his eyes."

Col. Clark, who with other members of the Admission and Allocations Committee will determine the distribution of the $484,800 goal of the United Fund drive, learned that the association along with many other community groups is now involved in producing, in the next two years, a comprehensive community mental health plan. Comprehensive Mental Health Centers will include in-patient, out-patient service, partial hospitalization, 24 hour emergency service, consultation and education, according to Mrs. Hinds.

"During my training as a psychiatric nurse I remember families bringing patients apologetically to the hospital saying that they had kept the person at home as long as possible. When hospitalization is the only answer, this is only natural. If a patient can continue to work and live at home and be treated in such a comprehensive community mental health center, he will seek help earlier with a far better chance for complete recovery," Mrs. Hinds said.

Col. Clark learned that the cooperation between public and private facilities in the Pikes Peak Region is exceptionally good. By agreement with the courts, mental patients awaiting commitment to the State Hospital are held at Brady Hospital instead of in jail, as is still done in most other parts of the state. We are far ahead of some places in the enlightened care of the mentally ill," Cremonesi concluded. Pikes Peak Promenaders, under the direction of Lee and Geri Barnes are children from ten to sixteen years old. The organization, which was originally formed in January, now has 38 members. Pikes Peak Promenaders are members of the Southeast Council of the Colorado State Square Dance Association.

The graduates invited their parents and friends to a chuck wagon dinner. Following the dinner, Lee and Geri Barnes presented each new member with a diploma "Bachelor of Square Dancing" and the club badge.

Honorary membership badges were presented to those adults who have helped in the organization and promotion of the club. Mrs. Hank Copey and Mr. Zeb Bean. Other honorary members are Nell Hannon and Kolisek.

After the ceremony, the children presented an exhibition dance in their new costumes—white square dance dresses, red sashes, red pantaloons and red petticoats for the girls, white western shirts, red ties and cummerbunds, and black striped gambler pants for the boys, and white gloves for all.

The rest of the evening was spent square dancing. Hal and Randy Barnes assisted their father, Lee Barnes, with the calling.

The Pikes Peak Promenaders are more than just a square dance club. During the summer members of the club performed exhibition dances in the Pikes Peak Area, including the Carriage Stop, Black Forest Festival, Ent Office's Club and the Broadmoor Terrace.

Westinghouse Seeks Out New Markets, Judge Says

"We don't really develop markets. I think we seek them out and take advantage of them," J. Emmet Judge, vice president, marketing services, Westinghouse Electric Corp., said, to our energy resources as we look to the future and it should help eliminate geographic inequalities of electrical energy costs.

Today's speakers and topics will be: Walker L. Cislser, chairman of the board, Detroit Edison Co., Detroit, Mich., and president of Edison Electric Institute, "Energy and the Future;" Edward M. Naughton, president and general manager, Utah Power and Light Co., Salt Lake City, Utah, "Direction of Our Business;" and Richard Pownall, Denver, member of the American expedition that conquered Mt. Everest, "Americans on Mt. Everest."

In discussing the topic, "Developing New Markets," Judge expounded on the changes that have taken place within the country and the world. He pointed out that half of our population is under 25 years of age and 25 per cent of that group is in college. Within the next five to ten years these people will be our customers, he said, and these people are completely different from us.

Judge said marketing is knowing markets and what people need today and tomorrow. It also involves having the right kinds of products, he said, products that truly implement the business of service in the home, building or factory. Plans for marketing are also important, he said, plans for directing our selling effort to make sure that the customer wants the things we have. Communication is also essential, said Judge, we must communicate with the markets and the people.

In telling the story of "Complacency — The Temptation of Success," Richard L. Terrell, vice president, General Motors and general manager, Electro-Motive Division, LaGrange, Ill., emphasized, "Never let up in our effort to throw off the cloak of complacency, and never forget to orient our future course to customer economies. The great danger to electric utilities is having followed successfully a well-marked highway. The temptation is strong to continue along the familiar road."

The final speaker of the opening session, was James F. Young, general manager, atomic products division, General Electric Co., Palo Alto, Calif., who discussed, "Status and Prospects for Nuclear Power."

Young pointed out that nuclear power is economically just

ROC Program Seeks Student Applications

Applications are now being solicited by the Naval Reserve Training Center on Prospect Lake from college students for the Naval Reserve Officer Candidate (ROC) Program.

Each year the Navy selects a group of college Freshman, Sophomores and Juniors for officer training. When meeting the rigid requirements for the ROC Program, they will receive two full-time summer training courses at the Naval Officer Candidate School, Newport, Rhode Island.

Each course is eight weeks, scheduled for the summers between their Sophomore and Junior years and Junior and Senior years. Upon completion of these two courses and graduation from college with a bachelor's degree a ROC receives his commission as an Ensign in the Naval Reserve.

At Newport, their studies are planned to give them the thorough professional background vital to a Naval Officer. ROC's study naval customs, traditions and history, seamanship, gunnery, navigation, communications and other nautical skills.

Additional information may be obtained from the U. S. Naval Reserve Training Center on the South Side of Prospect Lake or telephone inquiries will be answered on 632-3382.

Saddle Valued at $200 Reported Stolen

E. J. Parker, of Route 1, Peyton, reported to the sheriff's department Monday that a skirted saddle with brown tooling worth $200 had been taken from his ranch tack room.

He said the theft happened sometime during the past week. Two burglaries were reported by the sheriff's department Monday.

The first happened at the Garden of the Gods Stables, 3700 W. Colorado Ave. where riding equipment and various other items worth a total of $260 belonging to Bob Clark of the stables were stolen.

Entry was made by forcing the lock, Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune said.

The second case was reported by Mrs. Corwin Johnson, 111 E. Washington St. who said that a skill saw valued at $69 belonging to her husband had been stolen from a house under construction at 3510 Temple Dr.

Lundquist Heads Knob Hill Optimist Club

Wallace Lundquist was installed as president of the Optimist Club of Knob Hill at the service club's charter meeting held last Friday at the Dublin House.

Other officers installed were Robert Ward, first vice president, and Clifford Kaufmann, secretary-treasurer.

Serving two-year terms as directors will be Dean Johnson, Bob Weldon and Karl Likeness. Directors named for one-year terms were Ted Thomas, Duane Graham, and Don Steiner.

Arion Hubchik will be sergeant-at-arms. Charter members of the club are James F. Allen, Jerry Birmingham, Samuel Colon, Oakie Constantino, Duane Graham, Ed Hamilton, Man Harris, Don Hartman, Clare Hemple, Arion Hubchik.

Dean Johnson, Clifford Kaufmann, Karl Likeness, Wallace Lundquist, Sam Morreale, David Nuss, Gene Oddone, Bert Patterson, Clyde Peterson, Al Ridge, Ray Robinson, John Ross, Charles Snow.

Don Steiner, Carl Susemihl, Ted Thomas, Al Tomassi, Rod Walker, Bob Ward, Carl Webb, Bob Weldon, Jerry Widner, Paul Williams, and Eldon Willock.

Fred M. Hammill, governor of the Colorado-Wyoming District, presented the charter to the club, and D. L. Hopwood, vice president of Optimists International, installed the officers.

Smoking Plan Alumni Slate Meeting Here

All graduates of five-day plans to stop smoking are invited to attend an "alumni" meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theater of the YMCA, according to Dwight S. Wallack, one of the program's leaders.

The follow-up clinic was scheduled for members of last week's Five-Day Plan group, according to Wallack. However, he said anyone who took part in three programs conducted earlier in Colorado Springs would be welcome.

He said there would be a special announcement about a cooking school which should prove especially interesting to housewives who want to learn more about the dietary recommendations that were made by Wallack and Dr. Hubert F. Sturges, physician, during the meetings.

Wallack said he hopes smokers who were unsuccessful as well as those who were successful in giving up the habit will attend Wednesday's session.

Mrs. Martha Miller Died Here Monday

Mrs. Martha Belle Miller, 2211 N. Tejon St., died Monday, at 89, at a local nursing home. She was the widow of John A. Miller and had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1919. She was a member of the First Christian Church, of Centennial Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star; Kinnikinnick Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Womans Club. Mrs. Miller was born in Princeton, Ind., July 10, 1875. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Roth, of Colorado Springs; three grandchildren and a sister. She was preceded in death by a son.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Law Drawing Room. The Rev. Malcolm McHarg will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices weakened early this afternoon in a seaway performance.

Trading was fairly active — about on a par with Monday but below the brisk pace on some days last week.

Gains and losses of a fraction to around a point were the general rule.

Except for strikebound General Motors, the auto industry group was on the plus side.

GM was off 1/4 after a narrow decline Monday.

Airfruits, electronics and utilities all held higher but slightly.

Most rails were lower and tobacco also were on the weak side.

Groups in the mixed category included steels, rubbers, mail order and retail stocks, chemicals, airlines and oils.

In one of the biggest blocks, 30,000 McGraw Hill shares changed hands. The issue was off 1/4 at 35 1/4.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 326.5, with industrials up 1/4, rails off 1/4 and utilities off 1/4.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 0.56 at 874.90.

Among the motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors all held fractional gains while GM was off 1/4. Leading steels showed fractional changes up and down.

General Refractors was up 1/4 to 20 1/4 in brisk trading and Sunray DX Oil, also very active, was ahead 1/4 at 35 1/4.

Ampex was traded in blocks of 10,000 and 3,000 shares and picked up 1/4 to 18 1/4.

Among the bigger gainers, U.S. Smelting and Refining was ahead 2 1/4 to 128, Du Pont was up 2 1/4 at 27 1/4 and International Nickel was ahead 1/4 at 85 1/4.

U. S. Treasury bond prices posted another advance. Corporate bonds were mixed.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans were in strong demand most of the time on the Board of Trade today and late in the session advances ranged up to more than three cents a bushel. The grains were mostly steady.

Reports of smaller yields brought buying of beans. There was talk too that supply and demand may be closely adjusted.

Firmer markets in soybean oil and meal also helped bean futures.

Outside of a little buying by local operators the wheat market was quiet. Commercial houses were active on both sides of the corn market.

Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 39; corn 643; oats 47; rye none; barley 30; soybeans 82.

Showers, Clear Weather Noted Throughout U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers fell over a large portion of the southern and eastern states from the western Gulf Coast to southern New England today.

A few showers also fell in the warm air that covered the southeast seaboard.

Elsewhere, from the Great Lakes and northern Texas to California and the Cascades skies generally were clear.

Some light sprinkling spread into the northern Pacific slope in advance of a cold front.

Early morning temperatures ranged from near freezing in the northern Appalachians to the low 80s in southern Florida and the southwestern desert region.

Lesson of the Redwoods: Nature Is Never Chaotic

By SAM CAWBELL

With a frequency that is surprising, government officials and reversed liberals alike express dissatisfaction with the trend toward government management.

Administrators are exasperated by the repeated breakdowns in the administrative machinery. Although they tend to view these re-occurring failures as specialized in character rather than typical and although they retain a faith that a workable management system somehow someday will evolve, there is a faint hint of suspicion that something may be faulty with the whole concept of government management.

Liberal Oxygen Gored
 The reversed liberals also exhibit signs of discontent as personal oxen are gored by the propaganda monster they created.

In spite of this evident feeling, however, government officials and liberal ranks still are not the most fruitful recruiting grounds for capitalistic ideology. The dissatisfied socialists are locked onto a socialist course because they don't know what else to do.

They have lost their capacity to think outside of the socialist system. They are like a lion born in captivity who, having never experienced the grasslands of Africa, believes he cannot continue to survive apart from bars and steel.

They do not discern the difference between government as a function (this is good) and government as an institution (this is evil); they do not, in other words, distinguish law and order from the bureaucracy.

They believe law to be statutes. They conceive order to be standardization or sameness. And they imagine both to be legal eggs laid by a giant bureaucratic hen. No chicken, no eggs — so they reason.

This need not be. There is a mountain of political and economic science that men best adjust to one another when they are free to adjust. Yet somehow the vision of how an "unmanaged" society can function in harmony has not come clear.

A few words cannot paint the picture of the free society. Yet I think I caught the essence of it. On a walk with my children in northern California, I looked up at the redwoods.

My attention was attracted to the young trees. A foot to 18 inches in diameter at the base, they stand 50 to 60 feet in height. So slender and yet so tall. They stand because they are correctly engineered. How might a man build a tower like that? He would have to know his engineering. He would have to understand nature. If the engineering were less wise, a tower might rise to the same height, but it would require greater bulk.

So with law and order among men. If the structure to provide law and order is not in accord with the nature of men, the evidences will be a vast enlargement of bulk — a cumbersome, wobbling bureaucracy.

These symptoms are plain. But the remedy is equally plain. Nature is never chaotic. The rivers always are broad enough and deep enough to carry away the rain. Harmony between men is a product not of compulsion, but of incentive. Such is the nature of men.

Reports Do Not Agree on TV Subscription

Results are encouraging, says Sylvester (Pat) Weaver, president of the pay-television venture.

Subscription Television launched its ambitious California program two months ago by hooking up patrons in Santa Monica — and later, San Francisco — for shows of big league baseball, culture, off-roadway payls and year-old movies.

The Wall Street Journal reported last week that the firm had lopped off 143 of its 185 sales people, that orders were lagging, and that subscribers weren't spending as much on programming as anticipated.

Caught in his Santa Monica office between plane trips, fast-moving, big-thinking Pat Weaver appeared far from discouraged. He explained that his company had leaped into operation prematurely in order to combat the anti-pay-television forces that are sponsoring proposition 15 on the Nov. 3 California ballot. It would make pay-television "contrary to public policy."

He is hopeful that the measure will be defeated, but added he is ready to move $10 million to $11 million in hardware to other areas if the vote goes against him. He said numerous cities are interested.

gramming as much as we could. "We would much rather take in less and have a record of no cancellations. So far no installation has been canceled except for death or moving away."

Weaver said the 6,000 hookups had been made, a total of 25,000 sales have been made in the licensed areas, and 40,000 orders have been received. The cutback in sales personnel was to allow the installations to catch up with sales, he said, as well as to await the outcome of the November election.

He is hopeful that the measure will be defeated, but added he is ready to move $10 million to $11 million in hardware to other areas if the vote goes against him. He said numerous cities are interested.

Specialty Steel From U. S. Steel Used on Rockets

PITTSBURGH—United States Steel has announced availability of maraging steel sheets, a specialty steel expected to answer the aerospace industry's demand for a super-strong, ultra-light material for missile and rocket applications.

Maraging steel sheets, feature specified yield strength from six to 10 times stronger than regular carbon steel.

They are used in the aerospace industry to solve strength - with - lightweight problems. They follow by 18 months the introduction of maraging steel plates used extensively in the missile building program, for the same reason.

In addition to space age applications, maraging sheets have proven an exceptional material for such down to earth uses as pressure vessels, springs, spring fasteners, gauges and instrument parts.

Basic composition of maraging steel combines nickel, cobalt, molybdenum and titanium. It can be deep drawn, roll formed and welded, retaining toughness and ductility as a strength level far above that of structural carbon steel.

U. S. Steel took the exotic product out of the laboratory and put it on the production line using compositions evolved from fundamental studies conducted by the International Nickel Co., Inc.

Maraging steel has a 1,000,000 to 1 strength-to-weight ratio which meets demands of aerospace applications where increased payload is a prime objective. It provides engineers with a new range of strength levels to develop substantial weight reductions.

U. S. Steel uses a special electric furnace air - melt process to produce heats of maraging steel as large as 85 tons. In addition to sheets, the maraging steel product line includes plates, bars, strip, wire tubing and rolled or forged billets.

Police Hunt Killer Of Syrian Dictator

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Police hunted today for a Syrian wanted for the killing of Adib Shishkely, Syria's dictator from 1951 to 1954.

Police said Shishkely was shot Sunday on a street in Ceres, a farming center in Goias State, and that they believed the motive was political.

Shishkely, 57, had a farm at Ceres and had lived there for several years.

As a colonel Shishkely in 1951 led a bloodless military coup in Damascus. He made himself president and ran Syria until an army revolt forced him out on Feb. 25, 1954. He fled to Saudi Arabia. In 1957 a Damascus court sentenced him in absentia to life imprisonment on a charge of plotting against his successors.

Needless Phone Calls Reported by Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Federal employees in the San Francisco area largely ignored the government's new leased wire telephone system last year and wasted $134,000 on needless toll charges, it was reported Monday.

Ralph G. Deede, acting General Services Administration chief in San Francisco, said many federal employees didn't understand the new system, adding that he hopes the problem is now solved.

Under the system, federal agencies in 300 major cities are linked together by leased lines. The government pays a flat lease fee — no matter how many calls.

Investors Mutual to Pay Larger Dividend

MINNEAPOLIS — The Board of Directors of Investors Mutual, Inc. has declared a quarterly dividend of 11 3/4 cents per share payable September 25, 1964 to shareholders of record Sept. 24, 1964, Harold K. Bradford, chairman and president, announced.

This fourth quarter dividend of the Fund's fiscal year ending Sept. 30, is derived exclusively from dividend and interest income and compares with 10 cents per share paid by the Fund.

A distribution of 24 1/2 cents per share representing realized security profits also was declared. The like distribution a year ago was 20 cents per share. The total of 35 1/2 cents per share will be distributed to the Fund's 398,000 shareholders and will be paid on approximately 210,000 shares currently outstanding, compared with 183,500 shares outstanding at the end of the previous fiscal year.

Investors Mutual, Inc., oldest of five funds associated with Investors Diversified Services, Inc., is the largest mutual fund in the world, with current assets in excess of $2.5 billion.

A series of postage stamps marking the wedding of 24-year-old King Constantine of Greece and Danish Princess Anne-Marie will be issued on Sept. 18, the day of the marriage.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER
© 1964, By the Chicago Tribune

HOLLYWOOD — John Gavin has a new contract at Universal which gives him a chance at outside pictures, personal appearances, and TV. He was about to sue Titanus Studio in Rome which kept postponing a picture called "The Challenge". He was supposed to do it two years ago but they wanted to pay him in lira and he insisted upon dollars. Since his new deal, they've scheduled the picture for next June — in dollars.

Somebody tipped me off that the Fondas — Hank, Jane, and Peter — were having their first reunion in a year, so I called Jane. "Are they in town?" she asked. "Hope they call me." I told her she was getting pretty darned stylish living at the Bel Air hotel. "It's improving," she said. Her returns to Paris for 10 days French director, Roger Vadim, while Jane locations in Colorado. Then they'll both be back for a year's stay, and are putting together a neat little package for Jane to act and Vadim to direct a picture here. She brought with her a fantastic wardrobe from Chanel, Balenciaga, and Givenchy.

BOB HOPE starts his 15th year of TV this week... with Benny, Berle, Dean Martin, and Phyllis Diller. "I signed with Chrysler," he says, "because they guarantee your parts for five years." Politically speaking, Hope claims the viewers have two choices: "I Love Barry" or "Leave It to Lyndon." At the ground breaking for the Julie Stein Eye Institute at U.C.L.A., Bob broke 'em up with "Stein has contributed this wonderful clinic to treat the eye problems that come from the TV programs he makes." Merle Oberon stole the show in a pink suit and hat with parasol to match.

TIPPI HEDREN'S hoping to put herself under contract to Talent Agent Noel Marshall for life on Sunday, but it's going to be a struggle. She's having her house redone and somewhere along the line lost her plumber and the cement pourers. She'll be wearing a pale green lace suit by Rita Riggs for the wedding. Her discoverer, Alfred Hitchcock, is in Santa Cruz. Tippi will be unhappy if he misses the wedding. After looking at 200 boys, writer Marion Hargrove got his guy for the See Here Private Hargrove TV series. He's 30-year-old Peter Helm. "A potential star," says Marion, "so good that if the late Robert Walker had tested against him, he would have lost out."

WRITER DEAN JENNINGS, who spent a bundle chasing Rex Harrison all over Europe after being promised a story for a national magazine, got an out-of-court settlement against the actor. He never got the interview, but Dean's satisfied. Joe Bradley writes: "It's good that Carnegie hall was saved from destruction, but it was not only New Yorkers who did it. Isaac Stern enlisted the help of Philanthropist Jacob M. Kaplan and the good deed was accomplished."

TONY DESANTIS, owner of Chicago's Drury Lane, offered Bette Davis $50,000 for 10 weeks as the first star in his new million dollar theater which opens in January. Bette said she didn't want to play that long... Bob Mitchum's back in town. "For the climate," says he. Hasn't worked since May and says he appreciates it. I promised to cook breakfast for him Sunday — Heaven help him! Ketti Frings is in New York conferring with Feuer and Martin about her play, "Hobson's Choice." Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen will write the music. The story was done for the screen by Charles Laughton and Johnny Mills with David Lean directing. Ketti's due for another hit.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Luxury Follows Looting

It might be pertinent to comment a bit about a new office building, constructed in Washington, D.C., and known as the Rayburn Building. The project was begun nine years ago at a beginning cost of $2 million.

Now it appears that the Rayburn Building "and associated items" are going to cost the taxpayers of the nation some $122 million.

Here are items included in the total:

1. Cost of building site: $ 2,500,000
2. Site preparation: 1,600,000
3. Construction and equipment for construction: 71,500,000
4. Birdproofing: 450,000
5. Architect and engineering fees: 4,000,000
6. Furnishing: 3,500,000
7. Administration and "other" costs: 2,800,000
8. Acquisition of other properties adjacent: 11,700,000
9. Underground garage: 9,300,000
10. Remodeling Old House Office Building: 2,400,000
11. Remodeling Longworth House Office Building: 3,300,000
12. Miscellaneous: 1,200,000

Grand total: $122,000,000

This new structure has 50 acres of usable floor space. It has a 20 x 60 swimming pool; a gymnasium with massage tables; a cafeteria capable of handling thousands; a garage capacity for 1,600 cars; a 700-foot railroad leading to the Capitol. This last item alone cost more than seven other Capitol buildings combined.

One can begin to understand the frantic hopes of bright young men seeking seats in the Congress. A chance to have an office in a structure of this magnitude would certainly spur the most laggard.

But, it's odd, isn't it? Our objection to the lavish appointments doesn't arise out of objection to luxury, per se. It arises out of the fact that every dollar of the money thus expended has been wrested from you by taxation. If a private businessman wanted to construct two or ten of these monsters with his

Doers And Critics

Doers get things done. Critics usually are those who neglect the doing, but who have fine words of hostility for those who achieve.

Two Moral Systems

Two moral systems are available to the people of the world. One of these systems is based on the Golden Rule and the ideas of private property. Its strongest statement is found in the Decalogue: "Thou shalt not steal."

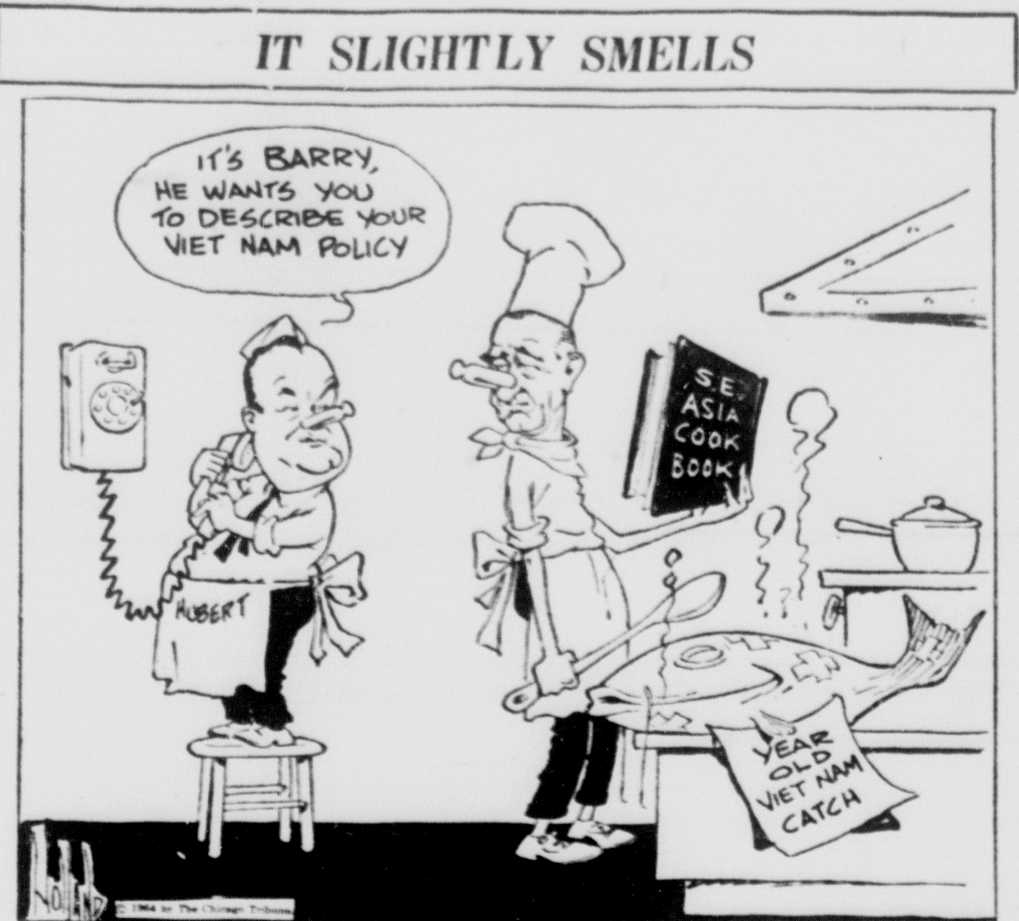

The other system is based on the idea of primitive men and the phrasing of Karl Marx: "Poverty will be eliminated through state distribution of property." Its strongest statement is: "From each according to ability, to each according to his need."

These systems suggest two entirely contrary and hostile systems of social organization. On the one hand, individual men and women will have dignity and will receive according to their abilities expressed voluntarily.

On the other hand, the state will arise as the dominant factor in life and serve as the central organizing body by means of which private property will be replaced by collectively owned property and distribution made by allocation.

The beauty of the first system is that it tends to reward people differently on the basis of their individual efforts and successes. This introduces the competitive factor and tends to bring out the finest latent qualities in all.

Such a system is only possible where individual men and women may privately own and control their property. Property of all kinds, from food to land to tools, is the reward to each on the basis of what he earns and where people have

Question Box

Question No. 591: "Are strikes a form of Civil War?"

Answer: It seems that labor union strikes are a siege to starve the public or the agents of the public into submitting to those striking, thus getting more than a free market would reward them. This is a complete denial of the Declaration of Independence which states all men are endowed with life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, or rather life, liberty and property, as originally intended.

Labor unions deny man's rights in property. They deny a man's right to make decisions, and the right to make decisions is a property that belongs equally to each and every individual.

Labor union strikes which create a monopoly to extort a non-competitive wage are simply a form of civil war. They greatly reduce production, and distort or annul the only way each person should get for his services, that is, letting all people help establish values. The labor unions by limiting apprentices and fixing artificial high wages are interfering with all people having this equal right to help establish values.

Neither labor unions, nor merchants, nor manufacturers would be so harmful if they did not intimidate Congress to pass laws which give them special privileges.

The reason they do this is because we have established a monopoly on what is called "education." This monopoly cannot teach the belief in free enterprise or any universal principle.

Certainly unions or strikes are civil war. They are a method of starving and impoverishing people into submission.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

been generally convinced of the efficacy of this procedure, standards of living rise, improvements in satisfactions and tools multiply. Riches abound.

On the other hand, the second system presumes to a kind of beauty. It bases its ethical structure on the elimination of poverty. And poverty is not pretty. But the ugliness of the second system is quickly discernible.

Wealth has to be produced; it does not arise out of nature automatically. And those who produce are not rewarded according to what they produce, but only on the basis of their "needs" as these "needs" are determined by the central authority.

Individual men are degraded and controlled. The indolent and shiftless are rewarded. Indeed, if a man be entirely without scruples, ambition or merit of any kind he will be beautifully rewarded since his "needs" are only to be met through the labor of others. The producers become enslaved to the non-producers on the theory expressed.

When such a system has been invoked, as has occurred a few times in history, the fall of production and the increase in human degradation can safely be predicted. In the end, production will be carried on only by the threat of force and intimidation. Civilian spying on one's fellows becomes a way of life. Envy and greed are encouraged. The liar and the cheat are enthroned in power and the honest man is proscribed and banished.

The Local Scene

The Glory That Is Fall

By RUFUS L. PORTER

When summer's gone I like the fall. I want to make that clear. But I wouldn't care for it at all at another time of year.

It is indeed a pity that vacation time for all our out-of-state visitors does not extend to the end of September. As it is, they miss our mountains at their very best. True, they are all enthralled by the grandeur of the Rocky Mountains and go home singing the praises of the Pikes Peak region as one of the greatest scenic spots on earth — and many of them have seen most of it. But what wouldn't they give to be able, as we are, to drive through the glory of millions of acres of aspen aflame with their autumn colors?

Sure, I know that autumn brings color and beauty to other parts of America. I have seen the maple and the alder and the sumac, the woodbine and the wild grape, and others too numerous to mention, in their autumnal splendor, but give me a thousand hills covered, but covered, with mountain quaking aspen in their golds and reds and oranges, with one shade blending into another, in the haze of Indian summer, and I will be happy to deed all or any part of other sections of these United States to you.

And where will you find the "quakes" at their very best? Why, in our own Pikes Peak region.

North Park, Middle Park, South Park, the San Juan Basin, Fairplay, Alma, Jefferson, Leadville, Telluride, Silverton, Ouray — you name it — any place in the Colorado Rockies can lay claim to being a beauty queen at this time of year. But only one can proudly wear the crown and, if the judges are fair, that one will be the Pikes Peak region.

And the best way to see the very greatest, the grandest, the most magnificent, the loveliest display of all is to drive up Ute Pass, turn south to Cripple Creek and Victor at Divide, and drive up the Midland Turnpike. Take along plenty of color film. After lunching in Cripple Creek or Victor, come back by way of the gold camp road and you will have toured through just about the most glorious scenery a mortal can ever hope to find on this planet. As Adam Lyre remarked one time when we were making this drive, "If

These Days

A Sick Society

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

We are hearing a lot these days about the coming of the Great Society. Though definitions of what a happy consummation may differ, only a reprobate could really object to being propelled forward into a time of greatness. The relevance of the moment, however, must be posed thus: How do we attain a Great Society tomorrow when we are living in a Sick Society today?

I do not doubt for a moment that most Americans are, basically, good and moral citizens. But, knowing to current standards of sophistication, people hesitate to make themselves heard on the subject of morality. It is the tone of society, as expressed in a score of new and loathsome "sophisticated" conventions, that is sick.

Does anyone doubt it? If so, how then explain the sudden escalation of seemingly pointless violence in our society? A year or two ago teenage bashes, while they were not to be condoned, were at least limited in their scope. Beer bottles were tossed around on the beach at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., by college boys and girls in spring vacation week. A house was wrecked at a fashionable Long Beach resort. But now the bashes take on a mass flavor at points as far apart as New Hampshire and Oregon.

Is this the end product of thirty years of permissive education? If so, then the sickness goes a long way back. And we are not on our way toward Greatness. Contrariwise, we are headed for the jungle.

PORNOGRAPHY Take the case of the spread of pornographic literature. Any person who deals in public affairs gets on a great many lists. But it is only within the past two years that the junk mail that pours in has come to contain scores of invitations to buy this or that erotic book or magazine. You can obtain Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" or the memoirs of Fanny Hill almost anywhere.

The "philosophy" of the editor of Playboy Magazine, concocted out of a free and easy interpretation of the Kinsey report statistics, is purity itself when compared to what you get in the less artistic girlie publications. The night club comic spiels get dirtier and dirtier. New York's Third Avenue is now known as "Queen's Boulevard," the reference being to the homosexuals who openly parade along it. (And this in the silk stocking district, too.) When I lived in Greenwich Village thirty years ago the place was not known for its Puritanism. But the age of marijuana — or worse — had not yet dawned.

The tone of the Sick Society is something that will not easily be altered by any changing of the political guard in Washington. This is something that cuts back of politics. Forty years ago Walter Lippmann tried to tackle the subject of moral relativism in a book called "A Preface to Morals." I recall Elmer Davis's one-line crack that the Lippmann book "is most useful where it is most preface-ry."

But things have retrogressed since then; today we haven't anything that is useful even as a preface to the subject of morality. We don't know how to deal with the teenage rioters. We don't know how to take the permissiveness out of education.

FUMBLING

Our candidates for the presidency are, each of them, fumbling for answers. Lyndon Johnson works Biblical references into his talks. Goldwater talks of a "dark cloud of corruption" in Washington, and promises a more moral tone to society if he is elected. Before November the electorate will be asked to choose between the two candidates on moral grounds.

But before going into that, it is relevant to point out that the Sick Society has infected both major political parties. If it hadn't been for one single Republican, Senator Williams of Delaware, nobody in either party would have pushed the Bobby Baker case. Certain Republican businessmen like the current administration because they know the ins and outs of getting contracts through its bureaucratic representative. Well, who is most to blame, the one who seeks the favors, or the one who passes them out?

Some day we may witness the coming of the Great Society. But this columnist, for one, thinks the attitudes making for the Sick Society must be changed first.

To The Point

The Polsters

By RUSSELL KIRK

Although this commentator has beheld the polsters publish some extraordinarily silly statements, the most preposterous allegation yet thrust upon the American public by these gentry is the recent declaration of Mr. George Gallup & Company that President Lyndon Johnson generates enthusiasm in the present campaign. A "research instrument" called the Stapel Scale is supposed to reveal that Johnson has an "enthusiasm rating" of 54.6, Goldwater of merely 21.4.

Now President Johnson, were the Presidential election held today, almost certainly would win. But that is a very different thing from rousing enthusiasm in one's supporters.

Who is supposed to be enthusiastic for Mr. Johnson, a tough and canny politician always more feared than loved, even by his intimates? And what has he done to generate this purported enthusiasm?

The liberals are not enthusiastic about Johnson — not the liberals I know and read. They

What Will Be Accomplished?

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

Invariably I find myself startled when another person asks this tired old question: "What will be accomplished if I, alone, refuse to sanction the political system?" Would not it be better to work within the system itself for less and less government?

The reason I am startled is because I probably used the exactly identical words only a few years ago and it makes me wonder how I managed to live so long without thinking.

Only one thing was accomplished when I decided I could no longer sanction the right of another human being to rule over me — or you. I found myself more comfortable with my own conscience and as far as I am concerned, that was an important accomplishment even if no one else in this country or any other, agrees with me.

The ancient cliché which goes, if you can't beat 'em, join 'em, is just about as worthless as most clichés. Criminality is on the increase all over the country, with few exceptions. Since we haven't been able to beat the criminals, shall we join them? Reckless driving is on the increase and my own rather cautious approach to driving a car evidently has no effect upon the majority of the driving population. Shall I join them and become a reckless driver, or continue to try to behave as a responsible person? By refusing to become a criminal or a reckless driver have I withdrawn from society? You say there's a difference, and you are so right. No individual criminal or reckless driver is in a position to do as much damage to so many people as a politician, in an elective office, even at the lower levels of government.

I can still hear the words of a politician demanding that the energies of all of the people of this country be harnessed to make this country more powerful. Since I refuse to accept the harness, should I have joined the forces which demanded that I stand while being harnessed? The urge for power over human beings is gaining in strength. How can I reduce that awful power by joining those whose basic goal is to rule others?

Of course, I discovered other benefits when I began to walk in the direction which leads to the road to freedom, illuminated by the bright and shining light of truth. I discovered that as I refused to be ruled by any other human being, so would I refuse to seek power over others.

Then there came the day when I realized that those who seek to hold power over others are never truly happy; they are too frightened. Every person holding public office is a frightened person; frightened because he or she knows that every collector Goldwater can't win, no matter what anybody says or does — why, one might as well spend one's surplus cash enjoyably, regardless of how much one likes Barry. (This polly already has seriously handicapped the Goldwater people, trying to raise 4 million dollars to buy television time.)

So I do cynically counsel you, gentle reader, to question the methods of polsters — and their motives.

IMMATUREITY

To the Editor: I see in this world a great immaturity; stemming from the lack of basic understanding as to the meaning of life. This understanding is distorted by concepts based on flexible moral codes. Regardless of the point of view I utilize, stealing remains stealing in each instance.

A man on his way to maturity will pass through communism and socialism. The step beyond these immature systems is individualism, freedom to practice self-control; a responsibility to do so. In my opinion this is the birth of a self-aware, conscious human being. Not until this happens will be one. The real leaders are these humans, Christ, as an example. An example set is the path to leadership. If one cannot lead himself, then lies are forth coming to proclaim himself a leader. A man is yet a dog to steal another man's production.

For one to adhere to socialism is a sign that one has stopped his journey to growing up. When I view political governments, they remind me of six-year-olds playing cops and robbers. To me, they are just this child-like. The reality of these governments can be extracted simply by taking the opposite meaning of the words a member of one sets forth. The lust and

The 'Anti-Poverty' Cover

By THURMAN SENSING

When the anti-poverty bill was passed in Congress, conservative members of Congress warned that many of the projects provided for in the legislation would serve as a wedge for radicalism in communities across the nation.

Opponents of the bill were convinced that labor camps and anti-poverty training centers would provide an ideal haven for those individuals who wanted to disrupt American society rather than raise living standards for poor people.

Confirmation of these well-justified fears was available almost before the ink was dry on the law signed by President Johnson. It came in the form of a charge by Deputy Mayor Scervane of New York City that Mobilization for Youth, the original model for an anti-poverty action program, was under communist influence. The "New York Daily News" asserted that printed materials used by rioters in Harlem and Brooklyn had been mimeographed on machines belonging to Mobilization for Youth. Later, it was learned that the FBI had uncovered the fact that nine members of the Mobilization for Youth organization had been members of the Communist Party or communist front members in the past.

This information was all the more revealing in view of the fact that New York newspapers disclosed that Mobilization for Youth officials had supported a rent strike in New York and attempted to participate in various forms of direct action social protest.

Now, it is bad enough when strictly private organizations, without a cent of taxpayer-provided funds, get into the business of urging citizens not to pay rent or other bills for which they are obligated. But Mobilization for Youth is an organization that has had federal financial assistance because it was originally designed by the late President Kennedy as a pilot project in anti-poverty action. It is a sample of what will be imposed on other communities under the legislation sought and obtained by President Johnson.

If the administration had admitted that federal funds would be used to pay for an organization supporting rent strikes, one can be sure that the anti-poverty bill would never have received congressional approval. It is outrageous that the taxpayers should be tricked into providing funds to subsidize wild, irresponsible, virtually criminal projects for social revolution.

Exposure of these facts concerning Mobilization for Youth almost certainly will have effects far beyond the limits of New York City. As Rep. William Miller, the Republican vice presidential nominee, made clear August 18, the matter of communist infiltration into a private but taxpayer-assisted organization in the nation's largest city is "very much a campaign issue."

The issue is whether the administration is going to extend its tolerance of leftwingers to the point where they may operate with federal funds. It should be borne in mind that there has been a definite trend in this direction during the last 3½ years. Advocates of leftwing causes have had the gentlest of handling from the Internal Revenue Service. The Highlander Center in Knoxville, for example, which has a long history of radical involvement, enjoys a tax-exempt status. Then there is the case of the organizations attempting to create a virtual revolution in the State of Mississippi. They never miss an opportunity to demand that their agents be given a shield of U. S. marshals.

Heretofore, however, the administration assistance to radical groups has been of an indirect character. In the case of Mobilization for Youth, federal funds are directly aiding an organization, at least some of whose members have fomented discord in the city in which it operates.

If the nation is to have revolutionary action groups that masquerade as anti-poverty centers, and at the same time benefit from taxpayer contributions, then the time to know about it is before the presidential election when the voters can register their feelings about such an extraordinary development. Certainly, the Mobilization for Youth link to rent strikes should ring an alarm bell for responsible citizens in all parts of this country.

grasp of power can readily be seen by the restrictions giving each man less and less free choices.

This majority business makes me sick. The results can easily be seen with just a little looking around. We constantly hear that the cost of services go up and up because this is the will of the majority of the people. The whole government is run to an effect so you will rush to the polls and X them back into office. The immature thinking of people gives to a few the absolute power of let live or kill. Political governments are depraved monstrosities, preying on the immaturity of the majority, and many even believing this to be freedom and self-government.

I cannot understand the apathy to this situation. I can see no rapid improvement in this country when so many remain so childish in their thinking. To have peace and freedom reign in this world, requires maturity, grown-up humans; individuals willing and able to assume the responsibility of being human. A man cannot be free himself until he gives freedom to all others.

QUESTIONS EVANS

To the Editor:

Now that Mr. Evans of Pueblo has chosen to castigate Barry Goldwater, I would like to ask him a few questions and see what kind of an answer he comes up with.

First: Can he deny that LBJ and Humphrey are both as far left as they can go and not be a communist? Is not the ADA a far left-wing organization? Of which Humphrey is a charter member?

If they are such good Americans how come they approved of Kennedy, Stevenson, and U Thant sold us down the river to the commies in Cuba, even apologized to them for our actions? How come LBJ gave 25 million dollars to the Russian communists fleeing from Red China? How come he condoned the crookedness of Estes in Texas? And Baker in Washington? How come our ships in Tonkin Bay were not flying the American flag when they were supposedly attacked awhile back? How come he (LBJ) is protecting Castro from Cuban refugees? How come he and Humphrey and Kennedy (Bobby) bulldozed through the Civil Rights bill, that discriminates against the white people and encourages the Negroes to riot, loot, and rape, when less than five years ago, he (LBJ) made a speech declaring he was against a Civil Rights bill and that it was socialistic legislation?

You answer all these to my satisfaction and I'll still tell you that the Democrats have not got a party anymore. It is the Liberal party and it is not too far from communism.

CITY SALES TAX

To the Editor:

Anyone who thinks that any purchaser in Colorado Springs doesn't pay a portion of the city taxes had better take a refresher course in simple economics and do some homework on why there is a shortage of property tax monies for city expenditures. Why run off any more prospective purchasers, including tourists?

IMMIGRATION

To the Editor:

An immigration bill, S. 1932—H.R. 7700 is about to be railroaded through Congress without any publicity. This bill would lift all restrictions permitting unlimited entry of immigrants from Asia and Africa. This is a communist scheme to send in black and yellow revolutionaries to reinforce the present guerrilla forces in our nation, and race troubles will be multiplied. Write the senators and representatives to fight this bill to a finish. We have too many disgruntled colors in our country now, and not enough jobs for what we already have. Johnson is trying to force this bill along with a lot of other bills before the election. Tell Congress to fight every bill.

Allen and Scott call our attention to the fact—that we have furnished tallo to Communist nations amounting to one billion, one hundred and eight million pounds since 1956. Tallo is the principal ingredient in manufacturing ammunition, and these exports are continuing. They may be used against our forces in Viet Nam.

Why Think About Economy

From Christian Economics

By V. ORVAL WATTS, Ph.D.

Praise of poverty and scorn of affluence are as ancient as our records of human thought—and as recent as many a current book or sermon. As John Heywood, 16th century versifier, wrote: "The loss of wealth is loss of dirt."

"As sages in all times assert: The happy man's without a shirt."

"We are corrupted by prosperity," mourned Tacitus, the Roman historian, and his plaint was an ancient theme of moralizers when he inscribed it nearly 2,000 years ago.

Even in business-loving America we find Henry Thoreau, 19th century individualist, admonishing his fellow Americans: "Cultivate poverty like a garden herb." As for himself, he said, "Let me see no other conflict but with prosperity."

In modern guise, these reactionary sentiments appear more influential in the United States, chief citadel of capitalism, than at any time in the past 300 years. The wants that urge Americans to strive for higher incomes, says Professor Galbraith, provide a drive which grows stronger even as we work to satisfy them. But to applaud such wants and such labor, says this political economist, is no more sensible than to applaud the efforts of a caged squirrel to keep abreast of the wheel that he propels by his own efforts.

As poets, priests and philosophers thus decry prosperity and pursuit of private gain, they give rise to the myth that only the poor and the self-denying are truly virtuous, secure and happy. The good ruler, then, is he who takes from his subjects, for "public" use, all but enough for their "basic wants." In his view Robin Hood, in his scheme for eliminating poverty, did the rich the greater favor when he robbed them to feed the poor, and when he entered the service of his kind, he could do legally what he had been doing illegally—levy tolls on all commerce through his domain.

When literate and learned men thus view pursuit of material well-being with distrust and disdain, men of force may prey upon enterprise. Then enterprise and industry languish, and the toiling masses surrender hope of affluence for false promises of security. The end result we see in the mass poverty prevailing in many areas of the world today, as well as in some so-called depressed areas.

The patriot builders of this nation wrought differently because they held a different view of man and his destiny. They knew well that riches add to man's cares as to his joys, but they regarded prosperity—the "more abundant life"—as the reward for virtue and toil. They had faith that the Creator intended that reward to be a blessing.

Says Catherine Bowen, biographer of John Adams, one ambition Americans had in common was "a fervent, passionate, unremitting determination" to improve their material status, to keep their houses warmer, to enlarge the yearly harvest, to enrich the soil, render the farm machines sturdier, quicker to answer to the hand. John Adams, as a citizen of this New World, writes Dr. Brinker, "took it for granted a man would use every effort to better himself, raise his family to a higher level, discard the crude implements, the smoky chimneys, the leaky thatch of his forefathers."

Perils lie in man's weaknesses and ignorance, not in his affluence or poverty, these American builders believed. As man gains in strength and wisdom, he can overcome adversity and achieve prosperity; and as they knew no limits to man's strength and practical knowledge, so they envisioned no limits for his progress in levels of living and welfare.

Inspired by this faith and vision, free men and women discovered and demonstrated how mankind everywhere can banish famine and plagues, relieve pain, lengthen life, improve its quality, and attain ever-higher levels of awareness, understanding and personal achievement. Mass poverty need not be.

Yet multitudes still drag through lives that are brutish and short, as did their ancestors before them. They and their children perish miserably of hunger, disease, and exposure because they are persuaded that pursuit of private gain is base, and that prosperity can be only a corrupting privilege filched by a few, by force or mere chance, from the toil of many.

Spokesmen for these deluded millions have long berated American businessmen as materialistic dollar-chasers. They deride our "enslavement" to time clocks and schedules, to blueprints and assembly lines. They rail against the "dollar imperialism" which they profess to see in our foreign investments and trade.

Practical Americans have been prone to dismiss these stunts as merely the sour-grapes carping of a paltry few. Soon, we hoped, all peoples must come to our way of thinking as they sample the fruits of our business enterprise and learn to enjoy them.

But humans need not choose our ways of thought and action, even though ours are ways of life and others are ways of death. Ancient scorn and fear of enterprise appear to be winning renewed authority abroad and increasingly infecting thought and modifying our policies at home. We are producing more than enough for our personal needs, say the American exponents of this ancient philosophy. Progress now calls, they tell us, not for more gadgets and status symbols for private consumption, but for a "redress of balance" in favor of the "public service." And since the "conventional wisdom" is regrettably prejudiced in favor of private spending, they say, "we" should devise a tax system which would automatically divert an increasing share of total output into the hands of the public authorities.

Authors of this "economics of opulence" have contrived it, therefore, to persuade us to return to the statist collectivism that, for thousands of years, has condemned most of mankind to murderous poverty. They propose not only more Robin Hood raids on the wealthy few, but increasing levies on the many for political projects supposed to benefit everyone more than the goods which the weak-minded, uncouth "masses" would buy for themselves.

To win the assent and submission of these same masses to their policies, the proponents of paternalism promise to lighten their work load and to provide them with guaranteed incomes regardless of individual effort or contribution.

This sophistry, the vote-getting bribes, and the mounting levies on production and savings are persuading millions of Americans to spend the limits of their incomes and beyond, secure in the thought that their government will take care of them in any and every emergency. As they succumb to the enticements of this grasshopper way of life, they find it easy to believe that less work and more pay, with more and more reckless spending by government, promote prosperity and progress for all.

Experience teaches, I believe, that these ideas and policies are suicidal. They are fatal to individual welfare and national strength wherever they dominate thought and action.

The Old Mountaineer

Smudge-Pot

By FRANK McDONOUGH JR.

Be patient, folks, because if you live long enough this cup will pass from your lips. I am referring, of course, to the cup which modern abstract artists use to fill with paint of variegated colors which they throw upon a canvas to which they give a couple of swipes with an old broom and call it Art. How fuzzy-necked can we get in this day and age? Yet, as we look over the ages past, we find that what passes for true art changes from time to time.

Much of the medieval hodgepodge art was crowded with over-fed and over-weight babies and the pulchritude of the women folks showed plainly that they had not reached the stage of counting calories and watching their weights. The Art, perhaps, was true to the age when folks ate all the food they could get and took no exercises whatsoever. But that cup, too, passed with the times and was superseded by the dense gloom of the days when Van Dyke brown was the popular medium.

If you want to see some horrible examples of changing art styles, wander around in the halls of our state capitol. In these paintings the mountains form the background. Invariably, there were shafts of pale light coming down out of voluminous clouds. There was always a gathering of pioneer men who twirled heavy watch chains, and the shoes which they wore, as painted by the artists, were atrocious things. As a matter of fact, the artists did not know how to draw a human foot. This cup, too, passed from our lips—thank heavens—but the artists, no doubt, defended their atrocities.

We were wandering around a beautiful western gallery where it was warming to the heart and pleasing to the eye to see a true glow of an Indian campfire or the glint of a colorful western sunrise on the horizon. In the midst of this entrancing beauty there was one which was considered to be truly abstract in the modern sense. It could well have been the puddling of a spoiled, four-year-old child. It could well have been the results of a mob scene of kindergarten delinquents who had stolen the teacher's paints in her absence. I knew this to be modern abstract art because following us about the gallery was a wormy looking creature who, no doubt, was unacquainted with bath water or with manicure accessories. Eagerly she followed us to hear our comments on her modernistic accomplishment. She heard plenty because the only use that could be put to such a smudge-pot would be to throw it into a nearby ashcan.

The tribulations of those who love true beauty and the gorgeous use of colors that are available to the artist will soon be over. The period may last a few months or a few years. The criminal distortions which you see in today's galleries are, thank heavens, but a passing fad. Theoretically, such monsters of modernistic art are supposed to represent a projection upon canvas of the inner soul of the artists. At the rate our civilization and morals are deteriorating, this no doubt is true, but the beauty of nature and the accomplishments of nature's God cannot be destroyed by faddists.

In the course, we hope, of a very short time these modernists will get their hair cut in Ivy League fashion and will sport themselves to a full-fledged manicure treatment, and the miserable cup which is now foisted upon an unwilling public will be a thing of a very silly past. The day cannot come too soon for those of us who love the serenity of true artistic accomplishment.

opportunity for waste and demoralizing dissipation; and these are the ways of suicide and death. But advancing prosperity means also new opportunities for individual improvement and for achievements that only self-interested, free and affluent individuals can discover.

For these reasons, I suggest, everyone concerned for his own and general welfare must do the hard thinking necessary to understand the meaning of economy, hard work, thrift, saving and capital, and their peculiar importance for humans.

The American Way

Law by Federal Register

By WILLIAM D. GRAFF

The United States Constitution is not one bit vague in specifying exactly which branch of the federal government is to handle legislation.

This matter was of sufficient importance in the estimation of the Founding Fathers that it became the very first consideration following the Preamble.

Article I, Section 1 declares: "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives."

Articles II and III concern the Executive and Judicial branches respectively, and nowhere in these two articles is any delegation of legislative powers made to the White House or to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The purpose of this discussion is not to go into the Supreme Court's many obnoxious forays into the areas of legislation. These black-robed ventures have elicited appropriate response from all sides of the political spectrum.

'LAW' MAKING

Rather, it is imperative that John Q. Public be made aware of just how much "law" is being made by agencies, bureaus and commissions within the Executive branch of the federal government.

If the question were asked: "How many have ever heard of the Federal Register?" we'll bet the show of hands would be almost nil.

Yet the Federal Register since 1933 contains more "law" than will be found in the volumes of legislation enacted by Congress since 1789.

On every day of the year except Saturday, Sundays and holidays, new edicts and rulings by executive departments are printed in the Federal Register. And, while the Constitution gives Congress the only authority to legislate, these decrees by regulatory agencies and others have the same enforceability as properly enacted congressional legislation.

This brings us to a strange contradiction in terms. If the Constitution specifically states that "all legislative powers" shall be vested in Congress, just what makes the Federal Register's decrees enforceable?

INFORMATION NEEDED

It's a good question; and we believe the answer will come from the people themselves when they are properly informed as to the existence of this (to all intent and purpose) sub-strata, para-legislative machinery.

As of August, 1962, there were 52 independent regulatory agencies with quasi-legislative, quasi-judicial and quasi-executive powers. They employed 463,219 people, spent 14 per cent of the total federal budget, and nearly one-third of the "non-defense" budget.

Other than the Interstate Commerce Commission, which could be considered authorized by the Constitution's permission to regulate commerce among the various states, we can't understand how these other gate-crashers ever made it through the door.

Certainly, Article X of the Bill of Rights (the "do-it-yourself" amendment) was intended to safeguard a self-sufficient people from the nauseous invasions of those who chorus "We Can Spend It For You Better Than You Can."

There is nothing in sight which, to us, offers a better opportunity for the needed housecleaning than the proposed Liberty Amendment to the Constitution. The mere mention of this measure gives the bureaucrats the willies—because it would cut off their funds and restore the same money to the taxpayers to be spent on whatever the latter would like to use it for.

Nation's Press

From Wall Street Journal

If we can believe what we read in some of the newspapers, that contract that Walter Reuther and Chrysler agreed on last week may have some painful consequences.

Though Chrysler and the other big auto companies may be able to absorb the large cost increases without raising prices, the United Auto Workers soon will be asking much the same things from other companies not quite so flush. Other unions also will be encouraged to push for larger settlements, and before long another wage-price spiral will be off and spinning.

All of this may well happen. But if it does, it really can't be blamed on either Mr. Reuther or the auto companies.

To find the true causes of any new inflation spiral, future analysts will have to look elsewhere. Specifically, they will have to ponder the government's whole approach to inflation.

On the surface the approach has been unfriendly, to say the least. No one in federal office would think of coming out openly for inflation, any more than he would advocate robbing widows—which, in a way, is pretty much the same thing.

According to Washington, however, there is really no need to worry about inflation at all. For one thing, the nation has lots of idle manpower and plant capacity; until this is put to use any broad rise in prices is unlikely. But whatever plausibility this argument may once have had has been riddled as more and more capacity has gone into use and shortages of skilled workers have cropped up in many places.

The government's other major "defense" against inflation consists of the so-called guideposts for noninflationary wage and price behavior. The nonsensical nature of these was apparent long before Mr. Reuther and Chrysler saw fit to ignore them last week.

Suppose Mr. Reuther had actually tried to follow the guideposts. How could he possibly have convinced his members that they must content themselves with a contract smaller than the companies might be willing to give them?

Auto workers read newspapers; they know that company sales and profits have been on the rise, right along with stockholders' dividends. In such circumstances, even a labor leader as persuasive as the UAW president would have jeopardized his own job if he had tried to limit his union to a Washington economist's idea of the "right" wage.

The auto companies know this as well as Mr. Reuther does. They also view with justified distaste the idea that this all-knowing economist can pick the "right" price for their cars. It's nonsense, and if it were successfully applied the country would be right back in the chaos of wage and price controls.

But the crowning absurdity is the idea that the auto companies and the auto workers should assume the burden of stabilizing the nation's economy. This would be ridiculous even if it did not, in effect, propose that the auto industry should offset the bad effects of the government's own inflationary policies.

These policies—the easy money, budget deficits and heavy spending—were at first supposed to pull the nation out of a recession. Well, we pulled out of the recession some time ago, and yet the inflationary measures still are with us, now aimed at pushing the economy to ever dizzier heights.

Some symptoms of price inflation are already appearing, and it is, as we said, possible that they could turn into a spiral that would undermine the nation's prosperity. If they do, it should be clear who really set the spiral spinning.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the smallest vertebrate?

A—The smallest living creature with a backbone is a tiny fish of the Philippine Islands named Pandaka—pygmaea. Adult females attain a length of seven-sixteenths of an inch and adult males never quite reach three-eighths of an inch.

Q—How large is an atom?

A—An atom is almost inconceivably small, and the size is variable. In general, it would take 200 million placed in a row to measure one inch.

Q—What is a fugitive color?

A—A color or dye or ink which is not permanent, but which fades or changes color as when exposed to light, is termed fugitive.

Q—What would happen if the hypnotist could not awaken his patient?

A—Psychiatrists say that the patient would simply go to sleep for an hour or two and then would awaken by himself.

Missing Molly Is Declared Legally Dead

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Seven years ago Molly Zelko, 47, part owner and business manager of a crusading weekly Joliet newspaper, waved goodbye to fellow workers and said: "So long everybody, I'll see you tomorrow."

She drove home, parked her car and, as was her custom, shoved the keys under a seat cushion.

There the trail ended. She never entered the house and she hasn't been seen since.

The mystery of Molly's disappearance eventually led to Robert F. Kennedy, one-time counsel of the Senate racket committee. Kennedy once directed a team of investigators to a desolate Joliet farm where they searched in vain for Molly's grave. Kennedy, later U.S. attorney general, is now the Democratic candidate for senator in New York state.

Monday a circuit court judge legally ended the mystery by officially ruling Molly dead under existing Illinois missing persons statutes.

Joliet residents say they've known Molly was dead all along.

Molly's newspaper, the Spectator, had gained wide readership and respect for its campaigns against gambling in Will County. Over the years, the newspaper had taken sides in bitter political campaigns and published personality stories reported to be displeasing to the subjects.

"She was a courageous newspaperwoman," her brother, Dr. Joseph W. Zelko, 56, of Joliet, said Monday. "We tried to tell her to take it easy, but she had an awful lot of nerve."

"I think she stuck her neck out too much," Zelko said, "and I guess she just stuck it out too far."

Adding to Molly's mystique was her apparent predilection that something was going to happen to her. Police said she once told associates on the Spectator to destroy her files if something did go wrong.

Three years earlier, the Spectator's office was mysteriously ransacked and in 1948 the paper's chief stockholder, William B. McCabe, was ambushed and clubbed near his home.

McCabe, who was hospitalized a year, and Molly charged that gangsters and politics were responsible for the beating, but no charges ever were filed.

In 1959 James V. Rini, an inmate of Joliet State Penitentiary, told the Senate racket committee during a pinball machine investigation that he had been paid $3,000 to help murder Miss Zelko. He said he could lead investigators to her grave.

Kennedy ordered Rini brought to the farm yard but no body was found. Rini later admitted his confession was a hoax.

"We haven't had a solid clue in five years," Police Sgt. Archie Kerr of Joliet said Monday. "Everything's exhausted."

"She was grabbed by somebody, but we don't know who," Kerr said.

"All I can say is she's now legally dead."

Teenagers Wed Finally With Dad's Consent

SAN DIEGO, Calif., (AP) — Russell Murphy and Ann Lakin tried a number of ways to fight a court suit aimed at preventing their marriage, but the latest effort was the most effective.

They got married. Russell's father, Melvin, had a lawsuit pending to prevent the nuptials and all parties were to appear in court this morning.

But Monday Murphy confirmed that Russell and Miss Lakin, both 18, were married Sept. 19 at San Diego's First Unitarian church with his consent.

Murphy, assistant professor of social work at San Diego State College, had obtained a temporary injunction to prevent the marriage when his son threatened to go to Nevada, where parental consent isn't required. He said he objected to the marriage on the ground that the boy was emotionally unprepared for the step.

Murphy said "no comment" when queried on his apparent change of heart.

He said the new Mr. and Mrs. Murphy have an apartment and that both are working. Russell, who abandoned plans for college to get married, work as a stock clerk, his father said.

Boost of Some Vet Pensions Is Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World War II and the Korean War to sign on. On six occasions the House has rejected this proposal.

The bill had been approved by the Senate last Friday, but Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., won reconsideration after he said the Bureau of the Budget was concerned about an amendment to give all veterans at 65 an automatic 10 per cent disability rating and a pension if they are within the income limits.

In its second look at the bill the Senate struck the automatic disability amendment. Pensions would be liberalized $5 to $10 in some lower brackets and income eligibility rules for spouses would be eased.

The bill goes to conference carrying a Senate amendment to reopen the National Service life insurance program for one year, allowing veterans of

Kenya Senate Faces Stenotypist Shortage

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenya's Senate met again today after a 25-day adjournment caused by a lack of stenotypists. It adjourned when its three British stenotypists resigned — one to join her boy friend in South Africa and two to get married.

"No stenotypists, no record, therefore no Senate," the speaker decided.

Clerk L. Ngugi arranged for one high-speed shorthand typist and three tape recorders to do the work. And 12 African girls are taking a crash course in stenotypy.

Law Dean Plans to Supervise Fencing

NEW YORK (AP) — Miguel de Capriles came to the United States from Mexico when he was 13 years old. He didn't speak English and didn't know how to fence.

Average price of an acre of farm real estate, including land and buildings, reached an all-time high of $129.79 in 1963, economists report.

Ever wonder who buys them?

We did, too.

So we hired a very expensive research company to find people who own Volkswagen Station Wagons and ask them.

On some topics, we could have saved the money.

People with 2.4 children

It came as no shock to find that an overwhelming number of people bought VW Station Wagons because they wanted a wagon that carried a lot and that was cheap to run.

But it was a surprise to learn that people really aren't taking advantage of the VW Station Wagon's size.

The VW holds twice what regular wagons hold: over a ton. (The VW can hold 10 kids with no trouble at all.)

Yet the average family that buys one has only 2.4 children. (Maybe they all have big plans and aren't talking.)

Sometimes, all the extra space turns into a problem. "Once in a while I have to borrow somebody else's wagon," a man complained. "Because everybody else keeps borrowing mine."

Roughly half the VW owners have no other car, so the VW Station Wagon gets used for all their driving.

The other half own more than one car, but 94% use the VW for most of their driving anyway.

"It's more fun," is the usual reason. We were fascinated to find that some people (9%) own a great big conventional station wagon in addition to the VW. "I use the big one when I don't have too much to carry," a lady muttered.

There is also an astonishing number (14%) who drive both a Volkswagen Station Wagon and a Volkswagen Sedan.

"Why?" we asked.

"Why not?" we were answered.

48% are 2 or more car people

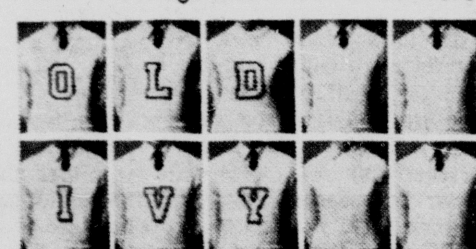

52% are 1 car people

The average income of our owners is a little under $175 a week.

But we get all kinds. About 1% of the owners earn less than $3,000 a year. And another 1% earn over $50,000.

So the VW is very democratic. The rich man saves as much money on gas, oil, tires and antifreeze as the poor man.

Volkswagen Station Wagon owners are pretty well educated: 6 out of 10 went to college and 4 out of 10 were graduated. (Which doesn't prove much, except that you don't have to be absolutely crazy to buy one.)

6 out of 10 are college people

We seem to have a high number of doctors, lawyers, teachers, foremen, etc. And they seem to be quite young: half the owners are under 35.

Something that pleased us is that 57% bought the VW Station Wagon because we have a reputation for making a good product. (40%, in fact, didn't even consider buying anything else.)

On the other hand, it displeased us that not even 1% bought it because they thought it had good traction in mud and snow. (Evidently, nobody pays much attention to what we say in our ads.)

All in all, we were happy to learn that VW Station Wagon owners are such nice, sober, industrious citizens.

They think of their wagons (and themselves) as something special.

(A VW Station Wagon always looks exactly as preposterous as the day you drove it home.)

100% of the people who own Volkswagen Station Wagons couldn't care less.

Favorites Capture Openers In South Central League

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The South Central League eased through one of its more predictable schedules last week-end, but no one is figuring that this unusual occurrence can be considered as an omen for the 1964 campaign.

In fact, even in victory, three SCL clubs produced surprises last week. Both conference favorites, Pueblo East, and Wason were choices for more convincing victories than were recorded by the two clubs. And few acquainted with South Central happenings had suggested that Trinidad would trounce Central by a four-to-touchdown margin.

Those occurrences lend even more mystery to the three game conference slate set up for Friday night. If past performance is any indication, the only cinch winner appears to be Trinidad when the Miners host offensively poor Pueblo South. Wason, still frequently undone by loose ball - handling, invades Pueblo Central and although the Thunderbirds will be favored, they will be no cinch. In the other SCL start, Palmer bows into league competition as a formidable contender, but the Terrors' opponent, defending champion Centennial, proved last weekend that it is capable of playing with the best.

East, the most frequently mentioned title favorite before the season got underway, will attempt to enhance the conference's non-league showing in a Saturday night game against East Denver in Pueblo. The annually potent upstate team sheared Centennial 19-0 in an earlier struggle this fall.

Last weekend saw three of the teams considered as "most likely" for the championship in the seven team AAA conference come through - but not necessarily as expected. Trinidad was the most surprising, as the Miners, a slim choice over Central, completely dominated that game while posting a 26-0 victory.

East, a strong choice on paper but a less heavy pick realistically, managed a 12-6 win over defending champion Centennial, but the Eagles were hard-pressed throughout. And Wason, obviously a vastly superior club than scrappy opponent, Pueblo South, had to come from behind in the final two minutes to upend the Colts, 19-14.

And, Palmer's frequently overlooked Terrors presented the league with one of its more impressive outside performances, pulling from behind in the final minute to tie the highly-regarded Loveland of the North-Central League, 19-19.

East and Centennial constructed a virtually even count in the statistical columns, but the opportunistic Eagles had the best of the defensive warfare and prevailed on a pair of offensive contributions by quarterback Bill Lucero. The Eagle standout raced 16 yards for the first touchdown in the second quarter; then passed 27 yards to Fred Fair for the clincher in the third period.

Centennial, which battled brilliantly most of the evening, finally countered on a 42 yard pass from Jim Brummett to Jerry Gutierrez in the final quarter, but could not crack through the Eagle defense again. Neither team managed much in the way of sustained offense, adding credence to the idea that the SCL will once again be primarily a defensive conference.

Trinidad's always - hungry Miners stormed past Central in impressive fashion, refusing to allow the Wildcats any action inside the Trinidad 20 yard line. Meanwhile Mike Bosso slipped over from the one and Tony Maccagnon raced 82 yards for a pair of second period scores. In the second half Charles Nardine returned a punt 58 yards and Dave Archuleta scooted 20 yards after crashing through to block a Central punt and then grabbing the loose ball on the bounce.

Throughout the Miners showed standout strength in the line and surprising speed in the backfield. Nardine and Maccagnon gave Trinidad excellent running and Bosso was an extremely effective quarterback.

Wason continued as the league's most controversial team. The Thunderbirds thrashed outmaned South everywhere but on the scoreboard where it took a late touchdown to overcome a Pueblo lead. With Wason whipping through the Colts almost at will in the early minutes, the game was a complete paradox. South held a 14-13 lead, opposite Wason's heavy offensive edge, until T-Bird quarterback Jim Smith slipped over from the one late in the final period. Smith, who played brilliantly throughout, set it up with a seven yard sprint around right end on a fourth-and-five situation. During the contest, fullback Bob Toof set a Wason rushing record, recording 150 yards, including a 48 yard touchdown run.

Palmer battled back in the final minutes after a pass interception at the Loveland 48. Fullback Ben Bryant, who has been a steady stalwart in the Terrors' attack, cracked across the goal with just 29 seconds remaining and Claude Spears added the extra point to provide the 19-19 tie.

The win boosted the Terrors' stock in the SCL as Loveland had whipped East Denver and tied Englewood, two of the state's highly rated teams, the previous two weekends.

Last weekend the Panthers dumped beefy Rocky Ford, 14-0, to post their third victory. In other action last Friday, the fired-up Gladiators of Widefield bounced back from the previous week's defeat to Thornton when they posted an overwhelming 33-13 triumph over visiting Westminster.

The Kadets romped to their third straight win after dropping the season's opener to Boulder Fairview last Friday when they waxed Castle Rock, 39-0. Cheyenne and Canon City went under with the Indians succumb and the powerful LaJunta eleven bounced Canon City, 32-7, to round out last Friday's action.

Harrison and Academy High are the only teams in the WRL circuit showing a profit for their non-conference outings. The other three teams have recorded 2-2 records including Widefield, Cheyenne and Canon City.

Norm Theiss' Gladiators went on the rampage last weekend to thrash a competent Westminster team, not only on the scoreboard but the Widefield gridgers also dominated the statistics picking up 381 yards rushing and passing compared to their opponent's 89 yards.

In addition to bouncing back from a Westminster opening kick-off touchdown, the Gladiators displayed explosive blocking and tackling. Converted

Gibson Hurls Cardinals Past Skidding Phillies

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Sisler, Johnny Keane, Gene Mauch.

Three managers. One thought: Win them all.

"Five more victories and we're the National League champions," said Sisler of the first-place Cincinnati Reds.

"Five games left to play - if we lose one, we're in trouble," said Keane of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

"We still have four games left - I think it'd be a pretty good idea if we won them all," said Mauch of the third-place Philadelphia Phillies.

Mauch, however, had to add: "We've won four in a row a lot more than we've lost eight straight."

No. 8 came Monday night at the hands of the Cardinals, who rode the hitting of Ken Boyer and Bill White to a 5-1 victory in the opener of a key three-game series and exchanged places with the floundering Phillies.

That pulled the Cardinals to within one game of the Reds, who were not scheduled, and dropped the Phillies into third place for the first time since May 5, 1½ games behind the leaders in the tight struggle.

The chase resumes tonight with the Reds opening a three-game series at home against Pittsburgh. Cincinnati will send rookie Bill McCool, 6-3, after its 10th straight victory, against the Pirates' veteran hurler, Bob Friend, 12-18.

The Phillies and Cardinals, who now have reeled off six straight victories, resume with Ray Sadecki, 19-10, expected to start for St. Louis. Dennis Bennett, 12-13, has been tapped to nalt the Phillies' amazing nose-dive.

The American League race also resumes with Detroit invading New York for a two-night doubleheader with the first-place Yankees. Baltimore and Chicago, both three games back, are at home to Washington and Los Angeles, respectively.

Only one other game was played in the majors Monday, the Los Angeles Dodgers edging the Chicago Cubs 2-1.

But the spotlight was at St. Louis, where Keane remained cautious, refusing even to mention the word pennant.

Keane, of course, has been here before. Last year, on Sept. 15, the Cardinals closed to within one game of the Los Angeles Dodgers. That's as close as they came.

"This thing is so tight and with so little to go," Keane said this time, "that I just won't even try to figure it out - mathematically or any other way. I've given up trying to figure out what could or not happen."

STRETCHES FOR A SHOT — Australia's Roy Emerson is shown in action in the fifth and deciding match of the Davis Cup Challenge round in Cleveland against Chuck McKinley of San Antonio.

Americans May Not Regain Davis Cup for Many Years

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Davis Cup is headed back across the Pacific to Australia, and the United States is faced with an old, familiar question: How and when can we get the tennis trophy back?

The answer is obvious: Maybe not for years.

In the last 15 years the United States has won the silver cup three times — 1954, 1958 and 1963 — and each time failed to defend it successfully.

The pattern was repeated here Monday.

Roy Emerson, the Australian who has continued to spurn the pros, delivered the clinching blow when he turned back Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., in the fifth and final match 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

This gave the Australians a 3-2 victory, but their superiority in world amateur tennis seems more pronounced than that.

In Emerson they have the undisputed No. 1 amateur in the world. He is the holder of the Australian, Wimbledon and United States championships and winner of his last 48 singles matches of any description.

McKinley was victim No. 48. Fred Stolle, Emerson's teammate, has a good claim to being either No. 2 or close to it. Runner-up at Wimbledon and Forest Hills to Emerson, he beat Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., in a key singles match here but lost to McKinley on opening day.

McKinley and Ralston may not be available next year to try to win back the cup.

"I have several business opportunities and I doubt that I can get away," said McKinley.

Ralston said he would be back — with an improved game — but friends say he is seriously considering turning pro, perhaps before next summer.

The United States has nobody in its tennis "bull pen" able to threaten seriously Australia's hold on the cup.

Best prospects are Arthur Ashe, the 22-year-old Negro from Richmond, Va., and Los Angeles; Marty Riessen, son of the tennis pro at Northwestern University; Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., with one of the hardest services in the game but no standout victories; Clark Graebner of Cleveland, and Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico.

Ashe and Riessen have promise but are a few years away from maturity. They say Pasarell has loads of talent but isn't hungry enough. Graebner and Froehling haven't shown the kind of ability necessary to compete against the top Aussies.

Emerson, 27, has been talking retirement for the last year or so, but is expected to be ready for the Cup defense, as will Stolle. Australia has outstanding young prospects in left-handed Tony Roche and John Newcombe.

AAH Makes Good With 3-1 Season

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Pre-season predictions have often been the "kiss of death" for some teams, but the talented Kadets of Air Academy High have lived up to the publicity given them by posting a 3-1 won-loss non-conference slate. This weekend the Big Blue launches its 1964 Will Rogers League campaign against Canon City.

In other WRL action Friday night, the 1963 State Class AA champion Cheyenne Mountain tangles with the loop's most improved team at Harrison. Widefield journeys to Pueblo Catholic on Saturday as the Gladiators conclude their non-conference schedule.

Bob Irving's young Harrison squad, although they have played Double-A schools, is presently deadlocked with Academy High in non-league standings with a 3-1 record. At the onset of the season, Irving indicated a lean season for the Panthers on the win side but the Harrison aggregation coasted to three division victories and dropped its single loss to Fountain, 14-7.

Last weekend the Panthers dumped beefy Rocky Ford, 14-0, to post their third victory. In other action last Friday, the fired-up Gladiators of Widefield bounced back from the previous week's defeat to Thornton when they posted an overwhelming 33-13 triumph over visiting Westminster.

Falcons are Favored In CSU Home Opener

After two grueling weeks on the road to open the 1964 football season, the Air Force will finally kick-off the home football schedule this week as the Falcons host Colorado State University at Falcon Stadium. Starting time is 1:30 p.m. The colorful Cadet march-on will take place at 12:45 p.m.

The Falcons, after having their feathers ruffled by Michigan last week, stand even with a win and a loss for the season, and would like nothing better than to improve on that mark this week.

A powerful Michigan eleven up-ended the Cadets by a 24-7 count, after the Air Force shocked the football world with a 3-2 stunner over high-ranked Washington.

Saturday's tilt will be the seventh gridiron meeting between the Air Force and Colorado State University in one of the oldest series in the still short AFA football history. The Rams from Ft. Collins notched a 20-7 win over the Cadets in their first meeting in 1957, but have never turned the trick against a Ben Martin squad. Since Martin took over at the Academy, the Falcons have scored five straight wins, including last year's 69-0 romp — the largest score posted by a major college in 1963.

Colorado State's only threat came in 1961, as the Cadets needed a last minute score — helped by a pass interference call — to post a 14-9 win. The Air Force has outscored the Rams in six games, 192-43.

Although the Falcons will be favored, the Aggies moved right back into contention as they posted an impressive win over the University of Pacific last week, 7-0. In doing so, the Aggies pulled off several impressive goal line stands to preserve the victory — much the same way the Falcons kept their goal line uncrossed at Washington.

Although the Cadets absorbed a terrific pounding in their losing effort against Michigan, all hands came through in good shape and the Cadets are expected to be at full strength for their home opener.

Martin's charges hope that the ball takes some better bounces for them this week, as they had nearly a season's worth of bad breaks in the first half of the Michigan encounter. The Cadets drove deep into Michigan territory three times in the first half with ut putting any points on the scoreboard.

Halfback Paul Wargo fumbled after recovering an Air Force fumble in Falcon territory, tacked on another in the second period, then added three points on a field goal in the last seconds of the first half following a weird chain of events.

First, Michigan's outstanding quarterback, Bob Timberlake, stepped out of bounds while rounding right end, but was undetected. He ended up going 19 yards to the Air Force 25 with less than a minute remaining. With 10 seconds left, Timberlake attempted a field goal which was blocked, but the Air Force was offside. He tried again but was wide to the left, but again the Falcons drew a five yard penalty. On the third try, Timberlake split the up-rights, and the Wolverines had 17 points at half.

Hockey Tourney Set Here

A holiday hockey tournament involving teams from Russia, Czechoslovakia, and Canada will be played at the Broadmoor's World Arena in Colorado Springs, it was announced late Monday. The tournament is slated for Dec. 26-31.

Winner of the tourney will receive the Walter A. Brown Memorial Trophy, in memory of the late promoter of hockey who was a close friend of Broadmoor president Wm. Thayer Tutt and who was instrumental in bringing the World Hockey Tournament to Colorado Springs recently. Brown, owner of both the Boston Bruins in professional hockey and the Boston Celtics of pro basketball, died unexpectedly two weeks ago.

Tom Lockhart, president of the Amateur Hockey Association, made the announcement from New York. He said the teams here would use the same scoring system as in the World Tournament, with each playing the other twice in the double round-robin.

Details on the games at the World Arena will be released later.

Lockhart also announced the Russian national team will play exhibition games in the United States on its way to Colorado Springs. The Soviets will play in Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 15; Muskegon, Mich., Dec. 16; Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 19; Waterloo, Iowa, Dec. 20; and Rochester, Minn., Dec. 22. Two other exhibitions before the tourney here will be announced later.

Salida-Florence Tilt Key to Pennant Chase

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Salida and Florence were more or less expected to share the top spot after the first week of Pikes Peak League play — but Fountain and Manitou Springs?

Unexpected though it may have been, those four held the first round lead as they took victories over the weekend. Fountain extended its win string to three with a 34-0 whitewash of previously-unbeaten Buena Vista; Manitou Springs upset Leadville, 19-6; Salida triumphed an upstart Crowley County, 18-0; and Florence rolled over Fowler, 31-6.

Manitou had lost its first two starts but broke Leadville's back with a 70-yard second quarter scoring drive, then went on to tally two more TDs on long runs. Leadville could manage only a score in the last quarter.

Fullback Danny Wheeler led the Mustang sprinters as he carried 207 yards in 19 carries, including his 70-yard touchdown run, he averaged 10.9 yards a carry. Larry McIntyre impressed coach Larry Olsen as he carried the ball 70 yards in five trips including a 40-yard TD jaunt.

Fountain was less than the favorite it might have been against Buena Vista, due to several injuries. Halfback Jim Daniels, heaviest man in the backfield at 178 pounds, played only two downs due to an injured leg. Both Trojan centers were out of the lineup. But Fountain kept the momentum it had reached since upsetting Harrison in the season opener and thrashed the Demons in statistics, as well as on the scoreboard.

Dan Grigsby, a doubtful starter, scored twice on short runs. End Dave Ury brought down a 15-yard pass from quarterback Brian O'Neill for another. O'Neill and Joe Martinez each added a TD apiece.

Fountain's line, one of the highest in the league, showed standard work by tackle Doug Stanley, guard Mark Noble and center Rodney Roark. Roark was converted from tackle for this week's game.

Salida faced a tougher-than-expected Crowley County crew. The Ordway school had six men injured in a 46-0 opening season loss to Harrison, but had them back Saturday and handed the Spartans some tough going. Salida scored once in each of the last three periods, but in the first period got inside the Demon tent twice without scoring.

Keith Baker was the outstanding groundgainer for Salida as he scored twice and rushed 180 yards.

Dick Shadwell helped Florence into first place as he scored four touchdowns against Fowler. He scored twice in the first period on a run of 37 yards and a punt return of 58 yards. Later he scored two short-yardage TDs.

Fountain could possibly be one of the two teams to stay in the thin air of first place as the Trojans host Fowler Friday night. Salida and Florence get down to business early as the two title choices battle at Florence Friday night. Manitou Springs seeks to stay among the victors as the Mustangs host Buena Vista Friday.

Saturday's only action has Leadville at Crowley County in a battle to escape the cellar.

Rookie Blanks Showing Old Hands How to Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Sid Blanks, Houston's sensational rookie from Texas A&I, continues to show the way among the ground gainers in the American Football League and also rates as the second best pass catcher.

Blanks, the replacement for Billy Cannon, who was traded to Oakland, has averaged 8.6 yards per carry with 242 on 28 attempts. The 6-foot, 190-pounder also has grabbed 18 passes for 207 yards.

Gino Cappelletti, Boston's pass catching end and field goal kicker, is way up there in the scoring lead with 40 points on one touchdown, nine field goals and seven conversions. Pete Gogolak, Buffalo's rookie from Cornell who boots them soccer style, is second in scoring with 28 points on 10 conversions and six field goals.

Len Dawson, Kansas City's veteran quarterback, has taken in six departments. Dawson has hit with 28 of 43 for 442 yards and four touchdowns. Babe Parilli of Boston has the most touchdown passes, 7, and George Blanda of Houston has passed for the most yards, 730.

Notre Dame Climbs in Grid Circles

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ara Parseghian doesn't believe in marking time. It took him only 60 minutes to snap Notre Dame out of a five-year coma.

The Irish haven't had a winning football season since 1958 — they were 2-7 last year — but they're off to a flying start under new coach Parseghian and it shows up in the national rankings.

Notre Dame rode last Saturday's 31-7 romp over favored Wisconsin into ninth place among major college teams in The Associated Press' first regular — season poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Meanwhile, Texas, given lukewarm support in pre-season balloting despite its 1963 national championship, reclaimed the top spot. The Longhorns blanked Texas Tech 23-0 and climbed from fourth to first place.

Both Mississippi and Oklahoma, Nos. 1 and 2 in the pre-season poll, were ambushed and dumped from the top ten. Kentucky surprised Ole Miss 27-21 and Southern California, one of Notre Dame's 1963 victims, took over the runner-up spot by trouncing the Sooners 40-14.

The Trojans actually outdrew Texas 17-14 in first place balloting but the Longhorns came out on top by virtue of twice as many runner-up votes. Texas amassed 395 points to 357 for USC and 347 for third place Illinois.

Michigan moved into eighth place with a 24-7 victory over Air Force. Washington beaten by Air Force in its opener, rebounded with a 35-14 decision over Baylor but slipped to 10th.

BOWLING

Gal in Limelight

By CHARLIE DREX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

With the exception of Phil Mesplay's 703 scratch series and the consistent bowling of Ethel Kalow, the scoring last week was considerably lower than the previous week which indicated a booming year for the Colorado Springs area.

Mesplay fired a 731 handicapped three-game series to win the Circle Lanes Sunday sweep. His 703 scratch set was tops in that category but he didn't enter the scratch division.

Ethel took the limelight from the distaff kiegars as she recorded the highest series and single game during the Women's Inter-City Traveling League last weekend at Trail Bowl. She fired a 249 single scratch game to outpace the gals.

Ethel also hit for a 233 tally to out score the women bowlers at Ute Lanes in league competition and she placed fifth among a field of 30 men and women bowlers last Sunday during the weekly Rainbow Tournament at Fountain Valley Bowl.

AREA SCORES — Mesplay's 703 scratch set was tops last week at Circle Lanes. . . Jim Pee fired a 699 set and Jim Daugherty Jr. followed with a 672 series at Circle Lanes. . . Joe Glass hit for a 673 series and Harry (Ike) Eichelberger posted a 627 series at Bowl-Mor Lanes. . . Oscar Briley's 663 set was tops at Ent AFB Lanes. . . For the gals, Ethel Kalow's 249 single tally topped all comers, followed by Mary Flemming with a 234 tilt and 606 set at Ent AFB Lanes. Other scores: Jean Atherton, 625 series placed by a 256 single game; Bud Blessing's 641; Eichelberger's 599; John Bound's 245; and Bob Denman's 628.

PERFECT GAME — A 17-year-old Canon City bowler, Glen Pottinger, probably wasn't aware of the frightening odds against a "300" perfect game 1,250,000-to-one — when he rolled his perfect game in Canon City recently.

Pottinger registered the perfect game in open bowling and thus, will not be awarded the $500 which is given to the lucky bowler if the "300" game is in sanctioned league competition.

RAPID PACE — The Pikes Peak Masters League at Circle Lanes is still maintaining a rapid pace in individual averages with Jim Daugherty Jr. pacing the loop with a 211 average. Other in the top including 17-year-old Paul Hoffman with 205; Bill Giese with 202; Jim Pee with 201; and Sherm

Wyoming Looking Like Best Of WAC Teams This Season

By DICK STUART
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wyoming may not be the fastest or flashiest Western Athletic Conference football team, but the Cowboys just may turn out to be the best.

And should coach Lloyd Eaton's rompin'-stompin' Cowboys continue their winning ways Saturday against Kansas, the WAC will carve another niche in its prestige log.

The Cowboys turned back Washington State 28-7 Saturday with a second half effort keyed by quarterbacks Jeff Hartman and Tom Wilkinson. Hartman passed for two scores, while Wilkinson ran for one and tossed a 35-yard pass to Bill Proust for another.

These efforts put the Cowboys' season mark at 2-0, the same as that for pass-happy Arizona State University.

The speedy Sun Devils, led by quarterback John Torok's three touchdown passes in the second quarter to halfback Larry Todd, burned West Texas State 34-8.

Quebec Team Wants to Join U.S. League

MONTREAL (AP) — There's a team in the UFL that ought to be in the CFL that wants a franchise in the NFL or AFL.

And from the way J. I. Albrecht, general manager of the Quebec Rifles, is talking, he isn't just idly stirring the spoon in his alphabet soup. He has a population explosion on his side.

Albrecht's Rifles, who probably would fit better in the Canadian Football League, currently are in the Eastern Division of the United Football League, a minor professional circuit generally based in the United States.

He wants to hit the top — either the National Football League or the American Football League — and by way of proving that he has a point immediately tossed this question front and center:

"Can you imagine what kind of a crowd we would draw with the Green Bay Packers in Montreal?"

The Rifles currently play in Montreal's 22,000-seat Delorme Stadium and have averaged about 6,000 a game for five games in their first year of operation.

Albrecht, who plans to make franchise applications to both the NFL and AFL by Nov. 1, said he already has spoken privately with the commissioners in both leagues plus several owners and "the initial reaction is that they are definitely interested in Montreal."

Then he listed the reason why they should be.

"First, of all, we'll make it quite clear that we have the money to purchase a franchise," he said. "Then, we have the nucleus of a ball club, with a full, operating staff that has seen service in every major football league."

"One of the big problems any league has when it considers expansion, is how to get players to stock new teams. Well, we already have a nucleus of talent. Out of the 40 men on our roster right now, I'd say that at least 11 of them are of NFL or AFL quality."

Then, he came to the most important point.

"One of the real big advantages we have over any other city in North America is our population explosion. Montreal is a large metropolitan area that is growing and growing all the time."

Albrecht also may be trying to get off to a good start by naming the team after its coach, Sam (The Rifle) Etcheberry.

It's been done before — by the Cleveland Browns.

Green Seeks Speed Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP) — Tom Green of Wheaton, Ill., planned to try for a world speed record today in a slim, sleek, jet-powered car designed by Walt Arfons, a 47-year-old Akron, Ohio, grandfather.

Arfons is an experienced jet car driver but has turned the wheel over to his associate, Green, for the attempt to better the 407.45 miles per hour mark set by Craig Breedlove of these same western Utah salt flats last year.

Breedlove also used a jet-powered car and plans to try again early next month.

Arfons had scheduled a record attempt for Monday but postponed it because of trouble with the parachutes used to slow down the vehicle which is 25 feet long, 51½ inches wide at its widest point and powered by a modified J-46 jet engine.

Big Eight Grid Teams Run Through Light Drills

By United Press International

Most Big Eight Conference football teams ran through light workouts Monday as they prepared for their first conference games this weekend.

Coach Caly Stapleton, whose Iowa State team meets an unbeaten Nebraska squad, made several changes in his lineup. Stapleton moved Ken Pigott to left end in place of Ernie Kun. Ed Kimbrough moved in front of Ely Strand at left guard on the No. 2 unit.

Nebraska went through drills without senior halfback Kent McCloughan, who scored two Cornhusker touchdowns against Minnesota last Saturday. McCloughan had a slight leg injury.

At Kansas coach Jack Mitchell looked over more serious injuries. Mitchell said halfback Willie Ray Smith is out for the season with a knee injury and sophomore tackle Harold Montgomery and center Jim Shanks are doubtful for the game with Wyoming Saturday.

Kansas end Mike Shinn also is out with a knee injury and Ron Oelschlaeger, who was to be a cast. Guard Tom Wyrostek is out of practice either, but coach Dan Devine said Wyrostek's bruised knee was "not as serious as we first thought." Wyrostek received the injury in last Saturday's game with Utah.

Mental Attitude Is Key For Pro Grid Players

CLEVELAND (AP) — What makes a professional football player a star one day and mediocre another day?

"Seventh-five per cent of winning depends on your mental attitude going into a game," says Frank Ryan, quarterback for the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

"In pro football, locker room lectures are a thing of the past," Ryan continued. "A smart coach works on individuals in a subtle manner. Paul Brown tried to get a team up by needling certain players. But I couldn't judge the value of that technique because the only year I played under him, this was a disgruntled, unhappy team."

"In our league, the players are so equal physically the difference on any given Sunday is the mental attitude," said the astute quarterback who is on the verge of receiving his doctorate in mathematics.

"When I'm in the right frame of mind it seems as though I can think the ball right to the target. It seems so easy to pass. And then there are days when it seems like I'm throwing a shotput."

"How do I develop the right mental approach? I sit down and visualize the circumstances I'll be facing in the game. Against the Cardinals I know I'll be facing a fierce rush. They blitz a lot. I set my mind to anticipate it mentally. That's night.

the easy part.

"The other part — to key you up for that little extra — that's the mysterious thing. Sometimes it starts building up in practice. The squad can be dead and all of a sudden you get fired up. With me it's sort of triggered off when the team gets together for our Saturday night meal. Then the psychological buildup starts approaching a crescendo."

Bernie Parrish, the veteran defensive back, had a different slant on the subject.

"To me the whole thing is simple. A reaction to a stimulus — the bigger the game — the greater the reaction. And that's not always good. If you get too high you lose your poise."

"If I have the kind of week in practice that I want and I'm physically ready, I know I can respond. If I'm sharp that week I feel high."

"You see," Ryan put in, "this psychological readiness is different for everybody. One of the great mysteries of sports."

Phillies Collapse Termed Worst in Baseball History

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The greatest collapse in the history of baseball.

This is the only way to describe the amazing slide of the Philadelphia Phillies. Only a week ago the Phils were riding high, leading the National League by 6½ games.

Today, following their eighth straight loss, a 5-1 defeat by the St. Louis Cardinals, the Phils were in third place. They were perilously close to elimination in the most incredible finish of any National League pennant race.

The Cardinals, all but counted out last week, find themselves just one game behind the league-leading Cincinnati Reds, who only a few days ago would have been content to finish second.

race has the principals so confused they simply have given up trying to figure it out.

Cardinal Manager Johnny Keane threw up his hands when he was asked Monday night what his team's victory over the floundering Phillies meant to the Cards.

"I've given up trying to figure it out," he said resignedly. "This thing is so tight, I just don't dare give an opinion. Let alone make prediction. Who knows what's going to happen tomorrow?"

"All I know is, we've got to keep winning. We can't afford to lose another game. We have five games left to play, two with Philadelphia and three with New York. If we lose one, we're in trouble. If we lose two, we're out of it."

The Phillies have reached the point of almost no return. Two down in the loss column with only four games left to play — two in Cincinnati following two more here. They must win all to stand a chance.

This would constitute a near miracle, judging from the Phillies' ragged performance Monday night. They were limited to five hits by Bob Gibson and Barney Schultz, and contributed two glaring errors in the field to boot.

Gene Mauch, the Phillies' distraught manager, refused to give up. Despite the ordeal, he obviously was undergoing, he remained calm.

"We've won four in a row before," he said. "We can do it again."

"Sure, we've lost eight in a row, but we haven't quit. You can't blame this defeat on pressure."

"We didn't beat ourselves. Gibson simply was too much for us. He pitched a strong game."

Despite the importance of their victory, the Cardinals players refused to exult, nor did they offer any criticism of the Phillies' performance.

"They're not getting the pitching," said Cardinals' captain Ken Boyer. "At this stage of the pennant race, pitching is all-important. We were in just about the same situation a year ago when we went into a three-game series against the Dodgers with first place at stake."

"They beat us because they got outstanding pitching performances from Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Johnny Podres. The Phillies don't have that kind of pitching."

On paper, the Cards figure to face the softest opposition of the three contenders, closing the season with three games against the last-place New York Mets.

"I don't look at it that way," said Keane. "At this stage of the race, you mustn't take any club lightly. If anything, you have to get yourself up more for a second division club. They take great delight in knocking off the front guy."

I do think this: If we can keep winning, we'll take the pennant because they (the Phillies and Reds) will be cracking heads over the weekend and probably split their two games."

Ray Sadecki, left-hander with a 19-10 record, was Keane's choice to oppose the Phillies tonight. He has hurled two straight shutouts, the first with ninth-inning help from Schultz.

Dennis Bennett, a strong southpaw with a 12-13 record, was due to pitch for the Phillies.

Chris Short, who had beaten the Cards three times without a loss, failed to last through the sixth inning Monday night. The Cardinals clubbed Short for seven of their nine hits as Bill White led the way with three over 100 in receiving three other times, but never did both in the same game. His only higher rush-pass figure was 242 at Oakland in '62.

"That's THE Abner Haynes," said defensive back Dave Grayson after the game.

The victory went to Gibson, his 18th against 11 defeats. The strong-armed right-hander has won eight of his last nine starts.

Abner Hanes Rejoins AFL Elite Runners

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Abner Haynes is back among the elite running backs in the American Football League, thanks to some effective psychology by Hank Stram, Kansas City Chiefs' coach, plus the return of split end Chris Burford.

The 27-year-old Haynes left no doubt at Oakland Sunday that he still belongs among the AFL's best. He had 223 yards total offense for 17 plays, the second highest total of his five-year pro career. It was his first game all season at running back.

Haynes, the AFL's first big name, had a bad season in 1963, with only 322 yards rushing compared to 1,075 in 1962. Among the reasons advanced were injuries and new men in the line, the death of his friend Stone Johnson and problems in the move of the team here from Dallas.

Only in the last two games, when he ripped 141 yards in 11 trips, did Abner perform in his usual manner.

At the start of training camp, Abner vowed that Kansas City fans would see a new Abner this fall. However, Stram said from the start Abner would be used at flanker through the exhibition season.

Then Furford and flanker Frank Jackson were injured and Haynes rotated between split end and flanker through five exhibitions and the regular season opener. He was the club's top pass receiver, but he wasn't happy. He was itching for a shot at his old running back job.

Stram expected Haynes to produce a big game and give the club a life as soon as he got his old job back. That's just what happened.

"The line was doing a heckuva job," Haynes said. "You can run when you know guys like Fred Arbanas and Curt Merz are around."

Stram said the return of Haynes to top form is stimulating to Kansas City offensive linemen and provides spark and balance to the attack.

"The way our line is improving, he's going to make a lot of yardage," Stram said. "They know it can be a big play every time he carries the ball."

Haynes carried 12 times for 106 yards rushing and caught five passes for 117 yards, including the winning touchdown on a 56-yarder. Haynes had been over 100 yards rushing 10 previous times in his career and over 100 in receiving three other times, but never did both in the same game. His only higher rush-pass figure was 242 at Oakland in '62.

"That's THE Abner Haynes," said defensive back Dave Grayson after the game.

Next Week of TV Reported Quite Relaxed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — After almost four hectic weeks in which well over 30 new television programs moved into their network niches, the next seven days of television appear relatively relaxed.

Only one — or is it three? — new evening programs will join a network — NBC's "90 Bristol Court," on Monday night. This is what might be called an integrated comedy show because each of the three half-hours in the 90-minute program will be in reality a separate episode, but pulled together because each set of protagonists lives in the same apartment complex.

Another entry comes on Monday, a new day-time serial, an ABC effort called "Young Marrieds," to be seen five days a week. The new soap opera will be set in the same community that now houses ABC's "The Doctors," and will concern itself with the tribulations of three young couples.

Other items of special viewing interest include tonight's "Bob Hope Theatre" Production, NBC, of a musical, "Think Pretty," with Fred Astaire and Barrie Chase, and a guest shot by Lucille all on NBC "The Jack Benny Program."

Maurice Chevalier will act as host on Saturday night's "Hollywood Palace," ABC.

CBS' "20th Century" on Sunday will be an offbeat look at big league hockey players in action, while NBC's "Meet the Press" will interview Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y.

NBC's "Andy Williams Show" will have its season premiere that night with Jonathan Winters as guest star. Another season premiere will be "The Hitchcock Hour," moving back to NBC after a sojourn at CBS.

The Telephone Hour on NBC Tuesday night will include Bing Crosby, Burl Ives and the McGuire Sisters. Then, of course, there is Wednesday night's appearance of the Beatles on ABC's "Shindig," plus NBC's two-hour feature movie, "See How They Run," a new show made primarily for television exposure.

On Thursday, Robert Goulet makes his dramatic debut on television playing a GI in "Operation Greif" on NBC's Suspense Theatre.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Marvin's wife is unintentionally sowing the seeds of divorce. And if it happens, she will feel 100 per cent innocent of any guilt yet she will be at least 50 per cent to blame. Alas, 13,000,000 American children now live in broken homes — and you mothers are often unwittingly to blame. Send for the sex booklet below!

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE T-486: Marvin G., aged 29, is a restless husband.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I married a wonderful girl three years ago and we were ideally happy for about a year.

"Then our baby arrived and my wife became so preoccupied with it that she forgot me. "Oh, not entirely, of course, but she'd have my meals late so I'd grow caustic because of my peptic ulcer.

"When it starts to burn and gnaw, I demand food fast. "And she also grew diffident about marital relations for she was afraid she would get pregnant again.

"So we quarrel about food and we argue about sex and then she cries and thinks she is abused.

"Now I am delighted with our baby, too, but I still want my meals on schedule and my proper ration of erotic food, too. Am I wrong?"

Marvin's wife is heading for a divorce, sooner or later.

For she is allowing her maternal interest in the baby to becloud her vision.

Regardless of a new baby, the typical husband still finds his stomach demanding three square meals per day. Wives, get help!

And he also has an even greater erotic hunger that demands satisfaction, too.

The main trouble in marriage is usually the fact that women are created to be about 25 per cent erotic and 75 per cent maternal while their mates are 75 per cent erotic and not over 25 per cent paternal.

During the first months of marriage, the wife has no other outlet for her 75 per cent maternal urges than her husband. So she babies him and also expends her 25 per cent erotic affection on him.

But notice what happens when the baby arrives!

She suddenly shifts her 75 per cent maternal urge to the new infant. This drops her attention toward her husband from the former 100 per cent down to 25 per cent.

In fact, the usual wife may no longer devote even 25 per cent to her mate, for when women have children, they can go along for weeks at a stretch, apparently quite content on no more erotic attention than a goodnight kiss.

Not so their husbands! So if you wives wish to be smart, don't follow the line of least resistance, which in your case means don't become merely baby tenders.

Despite your love and delight with your new infant, be practical enough to realize that your financial mainstay is your husband.

If you don't keep him satisfied at the table and especially in the boudoir, then some other female may threaten your home.

Beware, for there are millions more women than men in the U. S. A.

Since there aren't enough men to go around, you better train yourself to be BOTH a devoted mother and also a satisfying wife.

Remember, most divorces start in the bedroom! And 13,000,000 children in America now live in broken homes! The so-called innocent wives have usually been at least 50 per cent to blame, too!

Angry Fans Smash Dallas Auditorium Windows

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Angry fans smashed windows in the lobby of Dallas Memorial Auditorium Monday night after an unscheduled halt in a Ray Charles singers show.

A flying bottle knocked a city policeman unconscious as he and fellow officers stood shoulder to shoulder shoving the unruly crowd into the street. Police jailed four persons.

Police Lt. H. C. Halloway said several hundred spectators tried to storm the box office after an unidentified spokesman for the entertainers announced the performance was ending at intermission. He was quoted as advising the audience of about 4,000 to demand their money back.

The auditorium director, W. W. Vandershice, said four agents of the Internal Revenue Service entered the box office and impounded receipts collected by the promoter of the show, A. W. West. Tickets sold for $2 to $2.50.

Ellis Campbell Jr., regional head of the IRS, said he knew nothing about the incident but that his department on occasion seizes receipts to collect delinquent taxes.

Charles did not appear on the stage. Efforts to reach him for comment were unavailing.

Several big plate glass windows were smashed. The bottle throwing crowd also broke tables and other equipment.

One of the bottles struck policeman J. D. Stewart on the head. Half a dozen officers drew pistols as they forced a path to Stewart's side, but no shots were fired.

About 20 officers at the auditorium were reinforced after trouble started about 10:30 p.m. It took two hours to clear the auditorium.
